WOMEN STUDY STRONG ARM METHODS IN LONDON

Athletic Society Being Organized in Connection With Freedom League.

BOBBIES TO HAVE SURPRISES SPRUNG

Miss Kelley to Prove Her Ability in Hurling Policemen About.

(By PAUL LAMBETH)

LONDON, July 10.—A women's athletic society is being organized in connection with the Women's Freedom League, the chief organization of the militant suffragettes. In order that the women may learn the art of fighting and wrestling and thus make their arrests in the future the matter considerable physical display.

Up until the present the arrest of suffragettes has been one of London's chief outdoor spectacles, but judging from the conditions which are being made for the future the bobbies will have their hands more than full in dealing with the women.

Mrs. G. A. Kelley, a well-known suffragette, has been engaged by the organization to train the bobbies in the art of dealing with the women. She will use the same tactics which she has used in her own fights with the bobbies, and will be assisted by a number of other women who are well known in the suffragette movement.

Mrs. Kelley, who gained considerable notoriety as a hunger striker, in her own fights will have charge of a number of the women who are being trained. She will be assisted by a number of other women who are well known in the suffragette movement.

Mrs. Kelley is only 5 feet tall, but she has a reputation for being a very strong woman. She has been arrested many times, and has been in prison for several months.

TO MODEL COINAGE

It is announced that the Royal Mint is to be visited by a number of women who are well known in the suffragette movement. They will be asked to model the new coinage, and to give their views on the design.

The women who are to visit the Royal Mint are Mrs. G. A. Kelley, Mrs. E. S. Durrant, and Mrs. J. H. Durrant. They will be accompanied by a number of other women who are well known in the suffragette movement.

INSURANCE COMPANIES REFUSE POLICIES TO KAISER OF GERMANY

His Health in such a Condition That Physicians Warn Against Risk

(By MALCOLM CLARKE)

BERLIN, July 10.—Which has been written about the Kaiser's health, but it is in possession of facts which tend to show that his physical condition is worse than is generally believed. At the age of 60, the Kaiser's health is in a state of decline, and his physicians warn against the risk of his undertaking any strenuous activity.

The Kaiser's first thought was of his family, and he immediately opened negotiations to purchase a life insurance policy for $500,000. The policy was to be paid to his family in the event of his death. The Kaiser's health is in such a condition that his physicians warn against the risk of his undertaking any strenuous activity.

Medical experts were sent by the insurance company to the Potsdam Castle, where the Kaiser resides. They found that the Kaiser's health was in a state of decline, and they warned against the risk of his undertaking any strenuous activity. The Kaiser's health is in such a condition that his physicians warn against the risk of his undertaking any strenuous activity.

It is reported in official circles that the Kaiser's health is in a state of decline, and that he is unable to undertake any strenuous activity. The Kaiser's health is in such a condition that his physicians warn against the risk of his undertaking any strenuous activity.

commencing Monday (April 2) to the following musicals: "The Boy Who Sings" (with the Fishes) Play 1; "The Little Theatre" playhouse. O'Neil's opening in the old Ziegfeld was dramatic and of the part. "The Merry Man" was the first of his performances. He has been in the theatre in former years and is one of the most popular ending a season has ever appeared on the side of the bay. The West was not a place to keep a long time for the first time. The New York City is a leading lady in the Skinner's production of "Your Humble Servant" and he is one of the most distinct hits of the season. She joins the same group this coming season but is the engagement in New York does not encourage him to stay in the city. Many a ship will sail in season with his stock plus

In "Merry Ann," Miss Jewel is provided with a role that has been pronounced one of the strongest and most sympathetic characters the stage has known for many years. It is a character as stirring as a starling or three consecutive years of war means of enabling her to win a fortune in England. Miss Jewel has given a great deal of study to the character, having paved it a number of times before we can look forward to a dramatic next week.

The Story of Poor Alice, who has been made rich, and the L. Duke, who has recently married his fourth wife, is only another proof that capable business women and millionaire trading magnates are the victors of Cupid.

experiences of Alice Walsh Duke, far her troubled career had been brought to an ending that appears to be merciful, when looking at her. Seen at the Kankakee asylum the other day when her husband's attempted marriage was announced to her by a reporter, she seemed at peace and was undisturbed at the mention of Duke's name. " "Bredie Duke" she repeated. "O, yes, I married him. I was going to be happy. I remember that, and I ever was happy. He was cruel, cruel to all women, and my baby died and then there was so much trouble. I don't think of it any more, but I realize some of it when I try hardest to forget." But she said it all with the wondering eyes of a child.

Asked about Virginia Revell she answered: "Virginia? That was a girl from Mill Crown in the Carolinas who had a name like that. There was something about her in all the trouble Bredie and I had, but I can't remember her well."

The great thing to trust, which has been considered proof against any attack, has been put to rest, even though the facts themselves seem to have conspired three times to help it. One it was in the carnival and seasonal course of Mrs. Alice Weldon who had her final incarceration in a home—Lynch, Second, Weldon—the courts of North Carolina refused to let Duke take license to wed a year ago on the ground that he was not in a mental frame of mind. The third time was in a fake posthumous life of one Miss Wynne, a woman known to the family as "Aunt Wynne," who was safely away from her family at boarding school, a trick of fate happened.

An unfortunate twist of the law in the District of Columbia made it necessary to hold the name of the minister who was performing a marriage license. The clergyman, complacent generally, had been stirred by the adverse reports from that attitude as a consequence of respect and reverence. The Rev. Donald M. Bell refused to perform the ceremony when he found that the bridegroom was the illegitimate married Duke.

Here it was proved how the "Amie" at the same institutions. It was even proved how it handles a "savage" quarrel. Wylouth had gone back to school in a pet when her marriage plans first went awry. "I was going to marry Mr. Drake today, but I don't know whether I will or not," she at first said, angrily. The all about her had been making her wedding dress in the school sewing class. So, although she was lazier at when the failure of her marriage plans was flashed over the coming try, the bridegroom succeeded in getting her to make it.

up as soon as he got there, and they got away to Camden, N. J., and found a comfortable minister just as J. Edgar was about to be formally discredited embassy of the Duke of Teck's "escape" worked, it was the hotel at Washington. Once more R. L. Burke had outwitted his family.

Burke is estimated to be worth a million dollars. Early in life he married happily, and by this marriage two daughters were born. They are now married, and both have children. His first wife died. A second marriage ended in divorce. This wife is now living in California. Alice Webb, the Texas preacher's, was his third wife.

During the time of his former marriage and his pursuit by his relatives the "cents" centering about Burke suffered each, other with even greater rapidity than they have this time.

In November, 1902, Miss Alice Webb wrote to Brodia L. Burke about a tobacco deal, and asked him to meet her in New York. She was met instead by his brother, Benjamin N. Burke.

The next day, not to be outdone by the brother, whom she suspected of taking the place of B. L. Duke to throw her off the track, she telegraphed to B. L. Duke at Durham.

In two days more he met her in New York.

In three days he proposed marriage.

On Dec. 19 they were married.

On Dec. 21 Duke went to Durham and had (according to the account of Mrs. Duke) a dreadful scene with his two daughters, who declared that they would leave the house if his new wife entered.

"I have reared you in luxury and now deserve peace," she declares that Luke said to his daughters after that marriage. To his father-in-law: "The little woman of my choice has proven all that I could anticipate or expect; in fact, the more I see of her and know of her the more delighted I am at what I have done. I want to assure you that when we come home and you know her you will agree with me that I have made no mis-

On Jan. 6 following Duke was torn from his wife's arms at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, and committed to Bellevue.

On Jan. 7 papers were served on Mrs. Duke in a suit for annulment of marriage instituted in the Supreme court by Nichol, Asable & Lindsay, attorneys for Duke's relatives.

On Jan. 11 Alice Webb Duke employed counsel in Indiana corpus proceedings to have her husband released from the sanitarium at Flushing, Ia. 1, to which he was taken from Beckman, this time on the pretext of being treated for alcoholic dementia.

On the mandate C. M. Andrews, attorney for Bradlee L. Duke's secretary, William G. Branham, secured a writ of habeas corpus which was returnable for the following Friday, when Luke was to appear before Judge Gavron. This writ was procured for business reasons and opened the way for the secretary to make a plea before the court that he might be permitted to see his employer at all times. The secretary was careful to say that his proceedings had nothing to do with the affairs of Mrs. Duke, but declared that Duke was being held in a sanitarium against his will.

" On Jan. 14 Duke appeared before J. George Gynor, but his sanity was not determined. At the same time detectives for the Duke interests were following a Chicago man who had been a business partner of Alice Webb when she was known as a promoter.

On Jan. 15 Duke refused to see his wife or hold any communication with her—a direct change of front from the letter of endorsement that he had written her a few days before, and supposed to be based on the fear of being adjudged insane at his next hearing before Judge Gaylor.

Soon after this he had obtained : divorce, but with love or without it Duke was not to have the peace he longed for. He was watched by his relatives, and he was always in the line of sight of the operations of Alice Webb Duke.

Born in an orphan asylum, entrapped into a false marriage, tilted during her first real marriage to a man of violent temper, was part of the story of Alice Webb Duke as she herself tells it. Ten bills for liquors presented by hotels when sued her in Chicago and New York, and which she did not deny, showed the side of her life which her enemies tried their best to bring upon her. She was arrested for passing worthless checks and for nonpayment of her hotel bill, and it was at this time that her enemies also found it easy when they tried to show that her financial operations were only financial in the fact that she got money from business men, and that her methods were personal influence exerted over men in convivial moments which she entrusted them into. Even this if true can perhaps be traced to one little talk in which she told in three words a little known chapter of her life.

"My baby uh-oh" were those words, potent ones, which are back of the life of many an adventurer. If this was the first chapter, the last chapter is being written in the Kankakee Asylum. "Pain is its own anesthetic," is a truism which the doctors there and elsewhere have a way of repeating. "Dissipation is its own antidote" is a truism which the same specialists applicable to the Thoughts Go Back to Old Love.

"They are good to me here, but I want to go to Harvard," she said afterward as her thoughts wandered to a former lover. "I met him first in June when the roses were just like those roses out there. We were happy and I will be just as happy again. You will help me out, won't you? Why, I will give you a million dollars if you will."

was a year ago, when Duke was making his unsuccessful attempt to get married. That was marked by the worst fall which his wife took on the incline of her darkness and. It was July 12 that he attempted that marriage and it was Sept. 1 that Mrs. Duke made her sensational second Chicago in an automobile.

"I was without money and had been thrown out of a cheap boarding house with no funds, but the friends of wealth she used to have and the fortune she hoped to make still haunted her. With them, he was still generous. 'I've got $50,000.00 with me at the moment,' she exclaimed to the astonished chauffeur when he was ordered to take her to the police station in default of payment for the car at the end of the day.

"I've got $50,000.00 with me and we'll stop somewhere round here, for I must pay you for your kind and courteous treatment. I know that your suit will not come amiss. I have a private car. The friends following me are the 'big game' hunters in the city," she said.

At the same time she smiled a stranger and asked that he should rather decide a suit to him also.

"Give them the best in the house," she told as the chauffeur and the stranger examined the many samples. It was not long after this that Mrs. Polse became word of the country, and soon after was identified in Scotland Yard from her photograph. She had already declared great money doubts. She had in fact, and declared as a reason that her husband's tobacco trust had failed. She was arrested and put in the county jail for passing fraudulent checks, and at that time her interview was obtained from her cell. She was asked if she would like to be told of her condition and asked if he would aid her.

But neither the prospect of fully nor of asylums for a former wife had any effect on the millionaire, who was now more out in pursuit of his dream of love. The new fancy of his heart had been sent away from Duhamel to be shut up in a boarding school as soon as his school term opened. But what were these boarding schools for? he had already slipped past the doors of insane asylums? He would marry her yet in spite of frantic objections relatives, and with her he would just get the love and peace which he had so much needed of them.

"Does the new Miss Duhamel remember that, and will she give me the thought of the reporter who was sent to the bride and groom directly after the marriage?" she was dressed in a light brown dress, a black pleated skirt and a veil. She wore a profusion of sparkling diamonds like her husband. Morozov went back to the former woman—old and shrunken and with diamond eyes—she huddled down in her chair at Karabakov, dressed in her dusty gray gown. In her wanders is she, not living in peace and love and roses. Truly, love laughs at all barriers.

hunting with Orion and the beaming Mr. Moon, the boys declare adventure can't befall a bit too soon. They sight huge Camelopard, speckled with stars in this giraffe, and when they sight the long-necked beast they cannot help but laugh.

Right soon they call the Dog Star, which is Sirius, you know. The matter now grows serious. The chase cannot be slow. The Dog Star barks across the sky, and this its prey unnerves. In painful hesitation now its lengthy neck it curves.

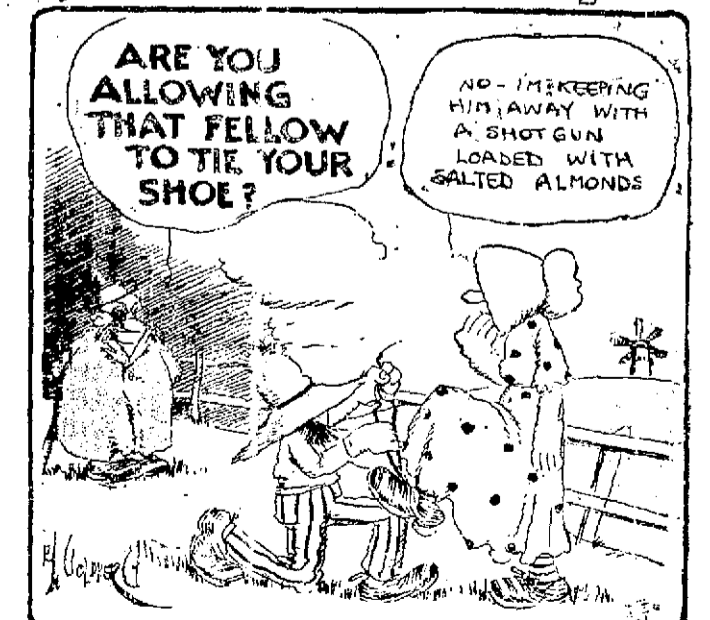

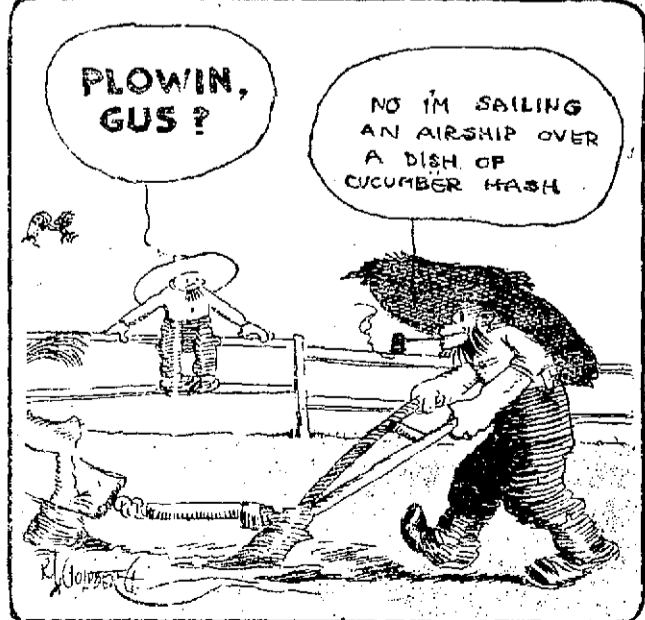

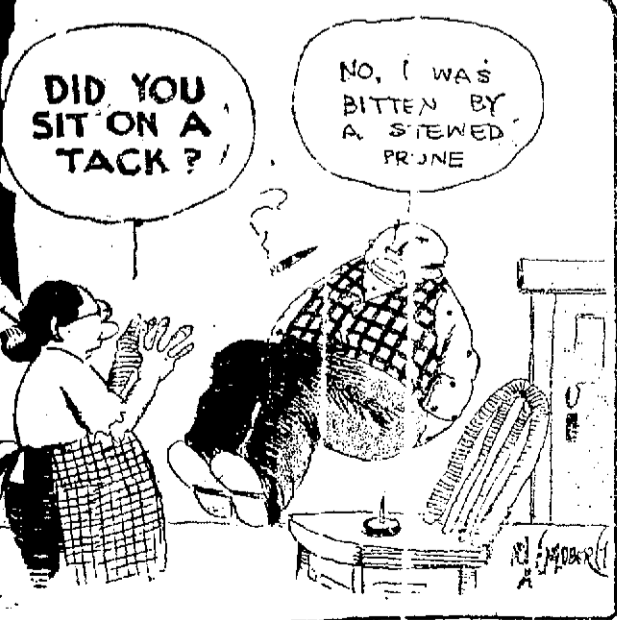

At last a refuge it selects up - the friendless air. And with a shout of great relief it makes for "Cassi's" chair. The Bird Boys and their hunting friends, bold Sirius as well, are after it along the trail, and time alone will tell.

The hunter beast now sees its goal and hastens like a streak. Then "Cassi" sees it coming and she lets a frightened shriek. She warns the huge giraffe that it must not disturb her rest. The boys sit and think their fleeing prey will come on a second best.

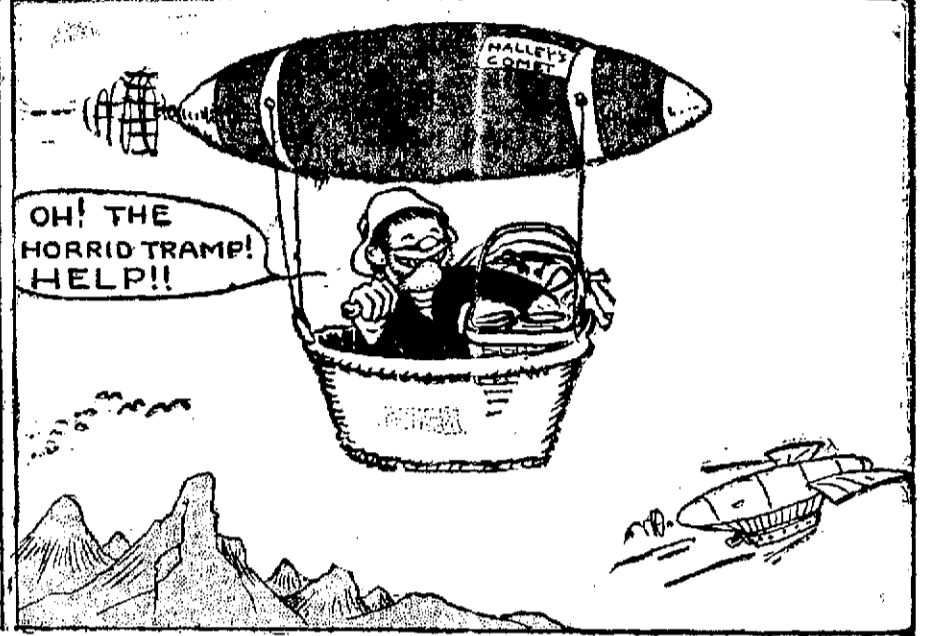

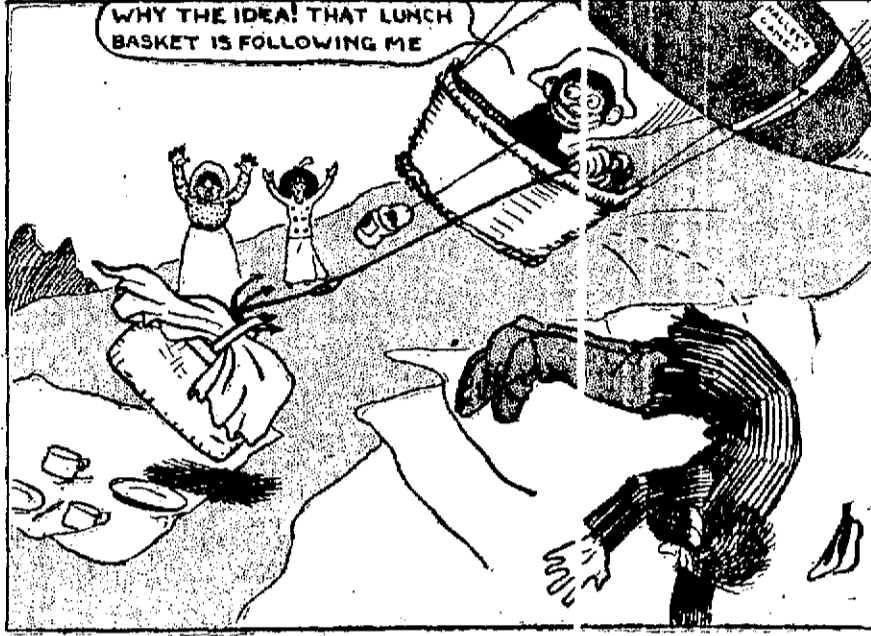

The animal zips 'round her and it seems a clever move. Which soon forthcoming incidents will largely go to prove. Poor "Cassi" tumbles from her chair down on a dusty cloud. While from the swaying airship deck there riseth laughter loud.

The wise giraffe escapes the mess, not so the luckless boys. The power gives out. Their zest for chase thereafter somewhat cloys. She takes poor Bulgy on her knee - a punishment not new. He's rather comforted that Bill and Budd will get it too!

Delightful recreation, isn't it, this roller skating. But somehow or other I just don't fancy skates that have four rollers. If I had my say, skates would be made with a solitary roller, a pneumatic one, something on the order of the ones I invented and used when I was appointed special policeman for the town of Scorchville. I used those skates of mine to great advantage, too, I want to tell you. And if it hadn't been for a great big mistake I made, probably I'd be using them to this day. It's easy to make mistakes, and I've made so few in my life that I can afford to tell you of this one.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

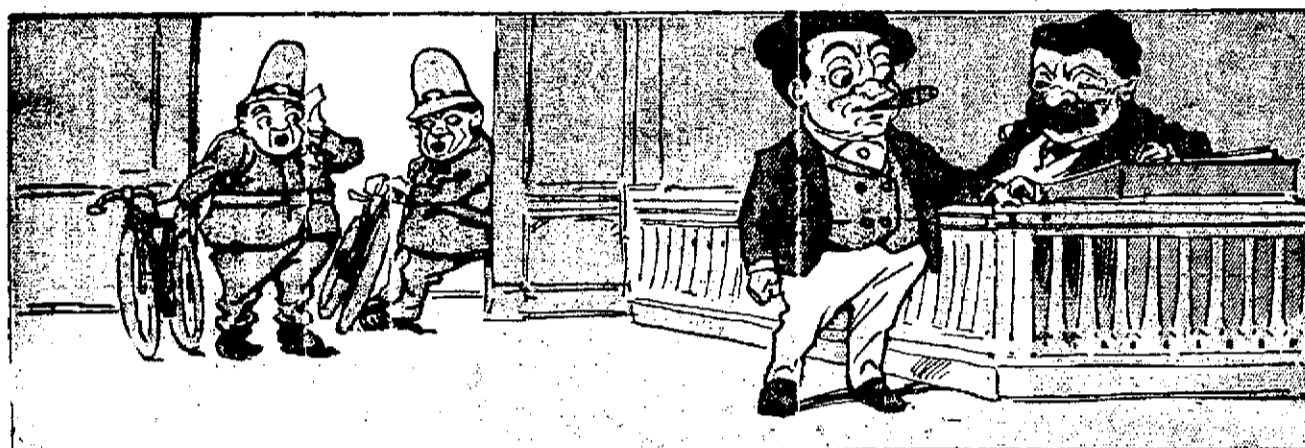

(Copyright 1910 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

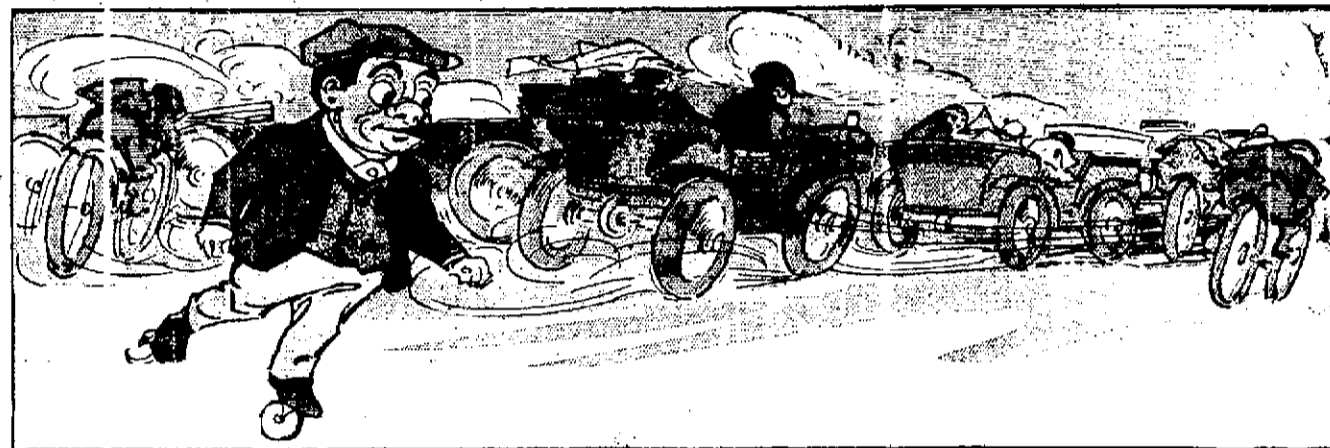

Scorchville was a thriving little city, overrun and infested with more automobile scorchers and motorcycle speeders than any other half dozen towns of its size. While the police succeeded admirably in ridding the town of undesirable citizens and making the municipality a byword for good discipline, the force seemed unable to cope with the scorchers or to arrest their wild flights, the arrests for this crime being exceedingly few and far between.

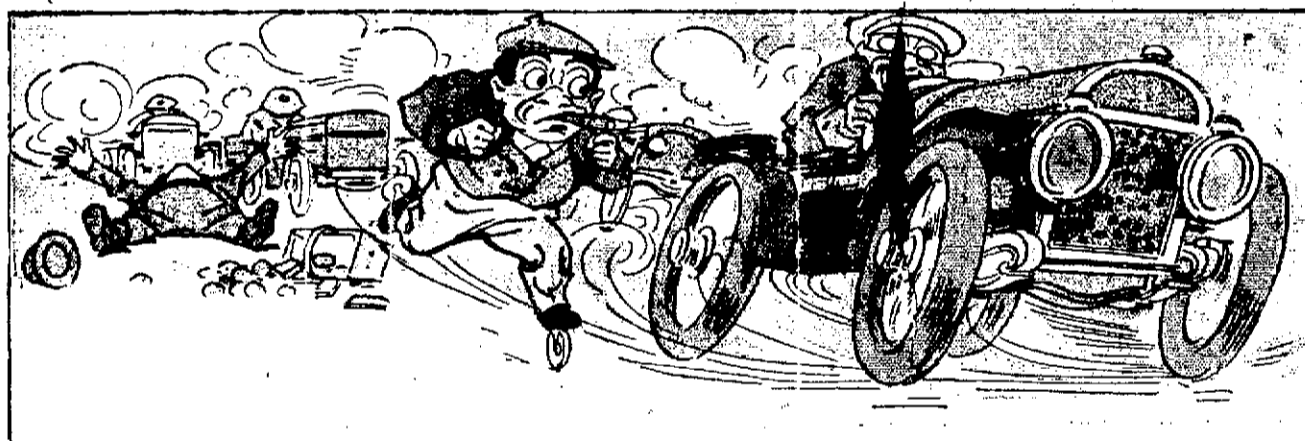

I stood one day at the intersection of two boulevards and watched the reckless driving of the chauffeurs and wheel enthusiasts. It was terrible to see the narrow escapes of some of the pedestrians, and also it was disgusting to see the mounted and motorcycle patrolmen in their feeble efforts to stop the carnage of speed and motor-mania. Some thing had to be done and done quickly, and I felt it was up to me to devise some ways and means to check the fiends.

Being a good citizen of Scorchville and naturally desirous of doing all within my power to abate this dreaded menace to life and limb, I one morning presented myself to Chief of Police Dontgetem and volunteered my services. "Great men have failed to stop 'em," the chief said to me. "I realize that, Chief," I replied modestly, "but the greatest man of them all has yet to fail." Just then two motorcycle police came in and acknowledged their absolute helplessness.

Well, the Chief finally said it was worth a trial and bade me go ahead. That day I invented and manufactured a pair of pneumatic rollers, and fastening them to my feet, I skated out upon the broad boulevards amid the throngs of flying automobiles. In all the dense throng of machines there didn't seem to be a single chauffeur with a desire to keep within the speed limit, and as I whirled along the streets I took their numbers for future reference. Then I started the ball rolling.

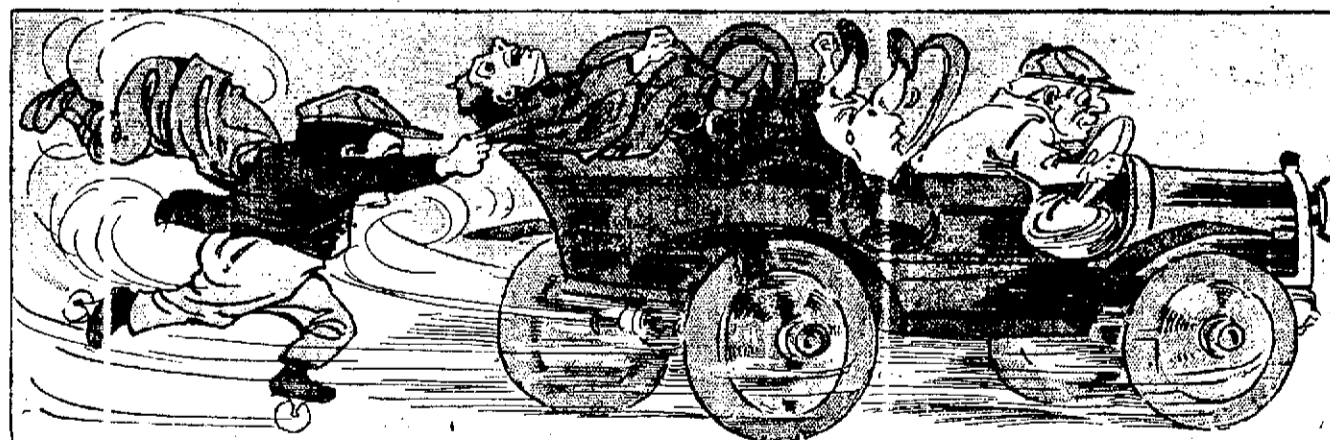

My pneumatic rollers were noiseless and gave no warning of my approach. I whizzed past a squad of scorching motorcyclists and hit 'em up in pursuit of a chauffeur who was driving his machine through the crowded streets at a speed which I reckoned to be about 47 miles an hour. Just as I thought I had him he struck an old gentleman amidsthips, sent him sprawling and sped on showing no disposition to stop and see the extent of his malfaisance. I tell you I was angry.

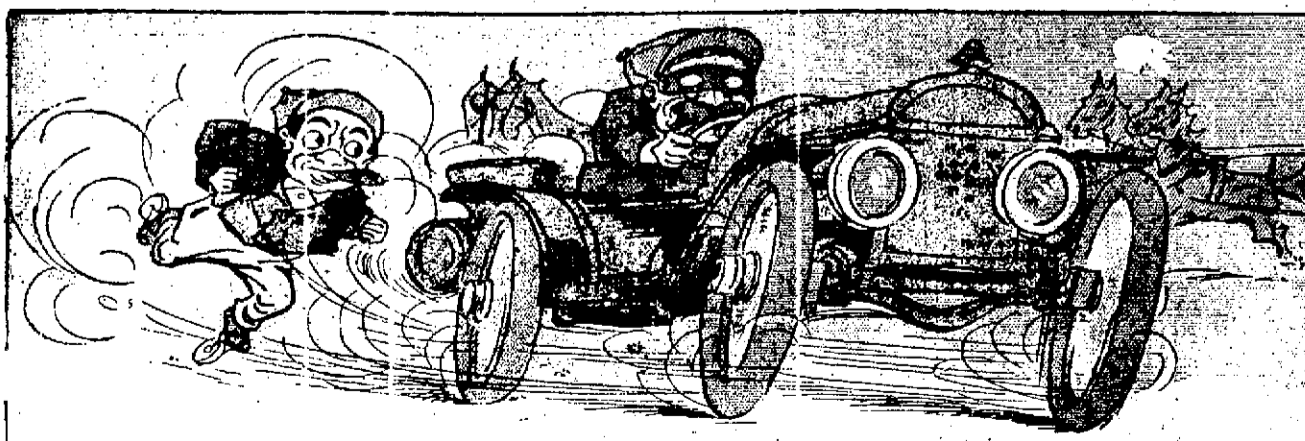

After him I started, gaining on him at every revolution of the wheels of my skates. He, having heard the shouts of the flying squad of motorists behind him turned, saw me in his wake, and put on every ounce of speed. But he had not one chance in a million of escaping. I was on him in another minute, stopped his machine with a simple twist of the wrist, and handed him over to a policeman. Then the motorcyclists laughed derisively and this again roused my fighting blood, for they, indeed, were a greater menace than the chauffeurs.

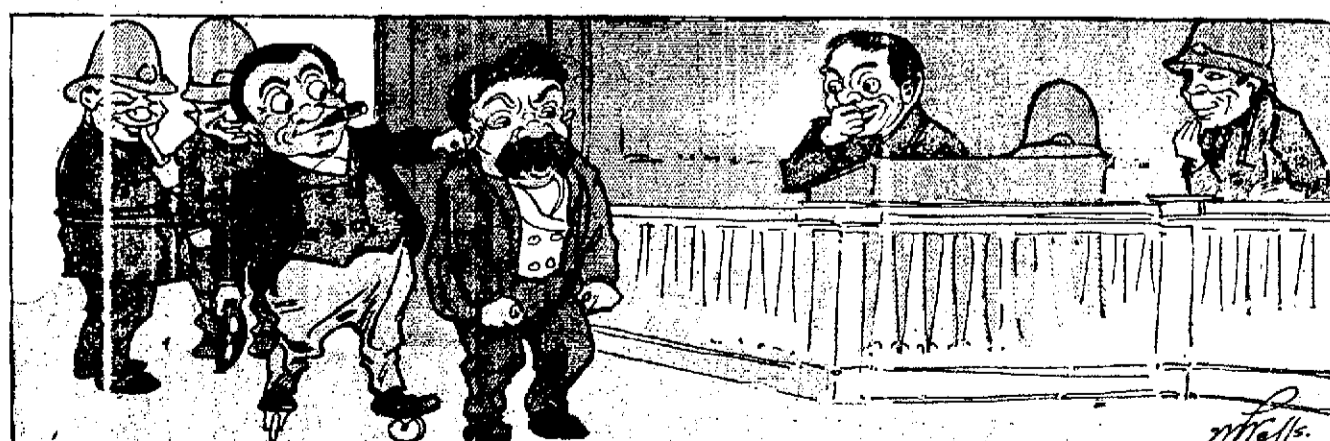

I whirled about and confronted them as they dashed upon me. With my great strength I rushed in among them, hurling them right and left. Those in the rear succeeded in checking their machines and a few thus retraced their course. Two of the scorchers I grabbed by the scruff of the neck and dangled them in the air as a terrier does a rat—only the simile in this case is not entirely apropos. High in the air I held them as a warning to all scorchers.

They were the ringleaders of the bunch and I was fortunate in having taken them into custody so soon. As I wondered what I should do with them a large touring car sped past. Then, with a captive in each hand I pursued the car, capturing a third cyclist while going at full speed. With great strides I reached the rear of the car and hurled the three law breakers into the seats which were vacant. Then I arrested the four of them on a second charge of speeding.

The darkness of night was gathering when I reached one of the main boulevards. As I stood on the corner chatting of my success with a stalwart guardian of the peace, the honk-honk of a big red car smote my ears. I peered through the gloom and then took up the chase—at that time about seventy miles an hour. Soon I caught the machine and peered into the begoggled face of the driver. "It's Opie Dilldock," he gasped. "I will come peacefully," and with a mysterious chuckle he turned his machine over to a policeman.

Without ceremony I shoved him through the door of the station. We passed two policemen who laughed behind their hands. Before the magistrate I hurried the prisoner. He gave one look at my captive and then laughed long and loud. "You do not believe in playing favorites I perceive, Mr. Dilldock," said the court. When I peered into the impassive face of my latest arrest. Jumping Alligators! I had taken into custody the Chief of Police of Scorchville himself!

ROBBER BAND LED BY WOMAN

MONORAIL CAR
PASSENGERS
DEATH

Superstructure Collapses and Occupants Are Hurled About in Confusion.

MANY ARE SERIOUSLY HURT ON FIRST TRIP

Showers of Glass and Wood Leave Wounded and Bleeding Victims.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The first scheduled trip of the new monorail car, plying between Barlow on the sound and City Island, came to a disastrous end this afternoon. Twenty or more passengers were injured, some seriously, when the superstructure at the top and bottom, which forms a track for the car, gave way on a sharp curve near Glover's Rock midway between Barlow and City Island.

The car was whizzing along at forty-five miles an hour and was apparently working smoothly as it approached Glover's Rock. Suddenly there was a terrible jolt, then the sounds of tearing and splintering overhead.

The car stopped, toppled for an instant and then fell over on its side. The forty-seven passengers were flung among the debris at the bottom of the car and some of them were pinned in the cigar-shaped ends of the long, thin monorail car. There were more than ten women in the car at the time of the accident. That some of them were not killed in the crashing car is nothing short of a miracle.

MARVELOUS ESCAPE.
The marvelous escape from death of the passengers is better understood when it is explained that the heavy seats on the upper side of the car were wrenched loose and thrust around through the protruding passengers like a flail.

Showers of broken glass from the windows bombarded the helpless men and women and inflicted flesh wounds. Men and women, bruised and bleeding and utterly bewildered, uttered shrieks of anguish and sought to trample their way out into the open.

The passengers had been laughing and joking a few minutes before the prospect of rapid transit between their homes and the Pelham station of the New Haven Railroad in place of the antiquated horse-car line which had been in operation up to today. A dozen men and women lay upon the floor and the other passengers trampled these under foot in a mad rush for the door.

Howard H. Tread, the inventor of the monorail and the chief engineer of the company which manufactures the car, and D. R. Brown, an official of the New Haven Railroad, were in the car. Beyond a few scratches, they were uninjured and they soon succeeded in quieting most of the passengers.

PASSENGERS CALMED.
In the meantime several persons who had witnessed the accident from the Hotel, a short distance away, had rushed to the scene to lend their assistance in calming the passengers and smoothing the wounded.

The hotel was turned into an impromptu hospital. Telephone calls had been previously sent out for ambulances and Dr. Carey from Pelham Hospital and an ambulance from Westchester soon arrived. The physicians quickly ascertained that none of the passengers had been killed and that only three or four were in a serious condition.

Just how many were seriously injured could not be learned, because many of the wounded had been taken away by friends in conveyances which came from nearby stables and from City Island.

It is believed that the superstructure was not strong enough to stand the pressure put upon it when the car flew around the curve.

A test trip was made Friday afternoon. In which everything went smoothly and the five-minute trip to Barlow was covered in seven minutes. For this reason, although the invention had failed to start on its first test, held July 7 last, everybody was assured of the safety of the device.

CAR WAS CROWDED.
Accordingly campers from Oakland Beach and residents of City Island were anxious to have the first ride over the new system. The car was crowded today.

The value of the monorail as a system is not impaired by the accident. The fact that a car can maintain a high speed with little friction on a single track has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of engineers the world over. The principle is not of a defiance of gravity, but simply a plan of working in accordance with gravity.

The American Monorail Company built and operates the tracks upon which the accident occurred. Among the prominent financiers interested in the project are C. C. Cuyler of Cuyler, Morgan & Co., Robert R. McCarter, attorney-general of New Jersey; Congressman Samuel McMillan, August Belmont and some members of the Interborough.

Physicians Advise Aged Warrior to Give Up His Tour.

WINFIELD, Kan., July 16.—While delivering the Republican party with all his old-time vigor and pouring volley after volley into the insurgents for party treason, "Uncle Joe" Cannon was overcome by heat this afternoon and had to quit.

He was taken to the home of Joseph T. Lafferty, where Dr. L. A. Jacob attended him. The doctor tonight said that the speaker was in no immediate danger, but advised him to abandon his speaking dates for some time.

"Uncle Joe" rebelled; he wants to fill his Kansas dates especially. He is scheduled to speak at Emporia Monday afternoon; Burlingame, Monday night; Alma and Hering, Tuesday. The speaker had talked for an hour and a half in a sweltering heat, with the thermometer hugging the 100 mark, to the largest crowd ever assembled in Winfield Chautauque grounds.

SPEAKER GROWS DIZZY.
He had practically finished his main speech and was laying his ground to answer Senator Burton's attack on the tariff, especially on the rubber schedule, delivered here one week ago when he began to grow dizzy.

Realizing his precarious physical condition, Uncle Joe grabbed some ice out of the water pitcher and applied it to his wrists. He also applied some more at the back of his head at the base of the brain. All the time he was trying to continue his talk. Suddenly his eyes became blurred.

"I would like to continue," said he, "but the heat has overcome me. I must quit. I thank you."

FRIENDS GO TO RESCUE.
Friends went to his rescue. In a few minutes he had somewhat recovered. He arose and went to the front of the stage again. To the dispersing crowd he said:

"This is the first time in my life that I have ever cut short a speech on account of sickness. I am sorry, Good-bye."

Again he was administered to and he hung his head cold water and cold air were turned on him. The assembly of people gave him the Chautauque salute. Everybody waved handkerchiefs. He was then taken to Mr. Lafferty's home, where he is now resting.

Ask Col. Roosevelt to Speak in Year 1917

San Francisco Delegation Causes Laugh by Far-Advanced Request.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt sat in his office in the Outlook building when a delegation from San Francisco was ushered in to see him.

"We should like to have you speak at the Lincoln Day dinner on February 2," commenced the spokesman of the delegation.

"Centenarian," said Colonel Roosevelt, "I believe I have filled that date." "Oh, but we mean February 12, 1917," replied a member of the San Francisco party.

Colonel Roosevelt laughed, and replied that he believed that date was open, although he would have to look on his memorandum book and make sure before giving a definite reply.

All Search for Alleged Slayer of Belle Elmore Is Fruitless.

STENOGRAPHER'S FATHER THINKS HER MURDERED

Physicians Not Sure of the Identity of Corpse Found in Lime.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The search for Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, American physician, accused of the murder in London last February of his wife, Belle Elmore, American concert hall singer, is now literally world-wide. The police of every country in which Crippen and Ethel Clara Levene, the young couple, may have fled, were put on the lookout for the pair. Every port for which British ships or French ships sailed on July 9 or thereafter began to search incoming vessels armed with accurate descriptions of the man and the woman.

A large force in the port of New York accompanied by Mrs. Robert H. Mills, step-sister of Belle Elmore, combed the passengers of La Lorraine and the St. Paul, which arrived today. Ships that sailed for Mediterranean ports, for the Azores and for the West Indian islands were likewise combed. Wireless messages were sent broadcast to the farthest seas to all British commanders as follows:

WIRELESS MESSAGE.
"Look out for little man with bald head, gray eyes, soft spoken manner—wanted for murder by Scotland Yard."

Word was received by wireless from Commander Cannon of the steamship Minnesota, bound for New York, that no one on board answers the description of the fugitives. Cable dispatches from London stated that Crippen and the young woman are still in England hiding somewhere in London. The chief of Scotland Yard hazarded the prophecy that they would be apprehended within forty-eight hours.

Ethel Clara Levene, who developed today, is not a French woman, but an English girl of the name of Neve. She adopted the French name at the request of the physician, whose most trusted employee she was. The father of the young girl today in London expressed the belief that his daughter had also been murdered.

He said that she had been in constant fear of her employer and had often told him of it.

MONEY IN HER NAME.
Crippen's bank account was in Belle Elmore's name and she drew all checks. That money is intact. Belle Elmore's jewels were worth about $5000, and those are all gone. If they were pawned in the United Kingdom or anywhere else they will be recovered. Without them it is not believed that Dr. Crippen could have lived more than $200. This would not take him far, particularly as he would have to pay dearly for secrecy.

Reports from London late today stated that search was being made for a French maid employed by Dr. Crippen at No. 39 Hilldrop Crescent, North London. It was feared that she also had been done away with. Friends of Belle Elmore in this country do not understand this. She never kept a servant. Cleaners came once a week, but the rest of the time the house work was done by Belle Elmore. When they gave an advertisement it was in charge of a caterer.

DOCTORS NOT SURE.
The physicians examining the body found in the Crippen collar are not yet through with their work and the inquest has been postponed until tomorrow. The police are satisfied that the body is that of Mrs. Crippen, but the medical men say the identity of the victim has not yet been established sufficiently to satisfy the law. After death the body was

Plunges From Liner's Deck in Fog and Crew Fails to Recover Body

NEW YORK, July 16.—While the steamer La Lorraine of the French line, which arrived today from Havre, was steaming slowly through a thick fog early last Thursday morning, Miss Eleanor Kaufman, a first cabin passenger, whose home was in Elberon, N. J., slipped from her stateroom without disturbing her sister and leaped from the promenade deck into the sea. She was last sight of immediately in the fog. For an hour and a half the steamship stood by while a search was made for the woman.

Miss Kaufman, who was wealthy, had been abroad three months for her health under the care of her sister, Miss Sarah Kaufman, five years her junior. The former was troubled with melancholia, which the trip abroad failed to relieve.

OMAHA, Neb., July 16.—William J. At midnight tonight twenty-one counties, casting 40 per cent of the vote, had reported, and Bryan and his issue secured the vote of just one county, that being Lancaster, Bryan's home county, the convention in which was held last Saturday.

TRIO OF THIEVES
JAILED WITH LOOT

Gang's Den Located by Sleuths by Feminine Neighbor's Fears for Her Life

Fearing for her own life and property and haunted by mysterious conversations which she heard from time to time through locked folding doors which separated her room from what the police have since discovered to be a veritable den of thieves, Mrs. E. Hart, wife of Captain Hart, a mining operator, yesterday caused the arrest of a gang of pickpockets and shoplifters who in a few short weeks are known to have stolen upwards of $1000 worth of clothes, jewelry and silverware.

The members of the gang now in custody are Mrs. Elia Harjens, alias Mrs. Edith Harjens, H. Harjens and Peter W. Harjens. That they have other accomplices who are still at large is the opinion of the detectives who have succeeded in securing much evidence against the prisoners and a close watch of the apartment house at 473 Eighth street which the daring clan used as their headquarters, has been instituted.

Trio Secures Rooms in Oakland

According to Mrs. A. M. Lemkau, proprietress of the house, the trio came there a little more than two weeks ago. Though Harjens is declared by the police to be the woman's husband, she introduced Harjens as her spouse and, procuring the rooms under the name of Mrs. Harjens, has since kept house for all three in the small quarters, explaining to such of the neighbors as seemed interested that the third man was her brother.

Shortly after the arrival, Mrs. Hart, who is alone in her room much of the day, was surprised to hear the trio engaged in a rough quarrel. The scenes were repeated at frequent intervals, and as the days passed, frequent allusions to "hauls" and various methods of "stalling" aroused her suspicion to such an extent that she watched a conference through the keyhole.

The woman, who is declared to be the ringleader of the band, was upbraiding both of the men for their failure to procure "salable goods" and with sneering superiority voiced her ability to "stall" better than both of them put together.

Thoroughly frightened and uncertain which way to turn, Mrs. Hart confided her suspicions to her husband, Captain Hart was less ready than his wife to suspect anything wrong and it was not until he, too, heard the trio planning coups and openly discussing "hauls" that it was decided to bring the matter to the attention of the police.

NEST OF CUTHROATS.

"By last Saturday I became thoroughly convinced that we were living in a veritable nest of cuthroats," said Mrs. Hart today. "I was so frightened that until Wednesday afternoon, when I summoned up courage to go to police headquarters, I never left my room. Captain Hart went in and out and as he left me each time I barricaded my door with chairs. After I heard the first conversation I moved my trunk against the folding doors and later in the fear that they might attempt to break in during the night placed the dresser against the opening."

"Night after night I awakened with a cold fear clutching at my heart, thinking that someone was trying to enter the room. The mysterious conversations on the other side of the doors continued at intervals and the matter so preyed upon my mind that for several days prior to my visit to the police I was unable to sleep or eat."

SLEUTHS FIND LOOT.
Detectives W. P. Kyle and T. Gallagher were detailed on the case and after shadowing the occupants of the room for two days watched until all left the house and then effected entrance to their quarters by means of a pass-key. Throwing open the door of the room the deaths were confronted by an outlay of valuables including jewelry, expensive clothing, silverware and household goods, which was piled about the apartment with no apparent thought of concealment.

Entering quietly, the detectives began a hasty inventory of the goods and were so engaged when Mrs. Harjens and Harjens entered.

"What does this mean?" demanded the man.

"It means that the game is up, pardner," Kyle told him, and Harjens sank weakly into a chair without protest.

ORDERS SLEUTHS OUT.
As in the cases of most of the larger and more important thieving expeditions, Mrs. Harjens, or Harjens

Pile of Plunder Has Resemblance To Rummage Sale

Detective headquarters at the city hall looks like a rummage sale. There is almost a wagonload of the plunder obtained by the shoplifters now under arrest. The police themselves have not yet made a complete inventory. The different articles are kept on display so that owners may call and identify them.

The goods vary from cheap kitchen-knives to costly cut glass. The value of them is about $1000. Among other things are:

One bundle of men's shirts.
One dozen loose shirts.
Three women's bathrobes of good quality.
Two women's bathrobes of cheap grade.
Two men's lounge robes.
Four bundles of socks: cheap and good grades mixed.
Three boxes of collars, assorted sizes.
Four bundles of neckties.
Bunch of loose neckties.
About twenty pairs of men's trousers, all grades.
About two dozen women's skirts, all grades and sizes.
Half dozen women's coats, two of good quality.
Half dozen pairs of men's slippers, all sizes.
Several cheap watches.
Several bunches of cheap rings.
A number of cheap watch chains.
A number of cheap necktie pins.
A number of articles used in trimming dresses, such as beads, cards of buttons, hooks and eyes, etc.

Women's jackets of all grades.
Several fountain pens.
Several pairs of gold cuff buttons.
A number of pipes.
A quantity of silverware, consisting of knives, forks and spoons, most of it of the best quality.
Several articles of cut glass, ranging from a small pitcher to a large punch bowl.
A large number of razors.
A number of pocket knives.
A number of women's waists; several silk and of good quality.

ROOSEVELT IS TO STOMP NEW YORK STATE

Former President Will Speak Often If Platform Is Satisfactory

DECLINES TO TALK OF OHIO PLATFORM

Flood of Requests for Public Appearances to Be Declined

CLEVELAND, July 16.—That Colonel Roosevelt is to take an active part as a stump speaker in the fall campaign was indicated by him to-night. The former President said he would deliver a speech in October in Suffolk county. The speech will depend, the colonel said, upon the developments within the next two months. If after the Suffolk county speech it is certain that the Roosevelt-Hughes program passes through the state convention and a platform satisfactory to the ex-President is adopted, he will make several other speeches. This much was intimated by Roosevelt.

PLATFORM PRESENTED

As to the Ohio state platform, the tentative draft of a committee of the Roosevelt administration was submitted to President Taft at Beverly Hills, Cal., July 16. The ex-President had no comment to make on the platform, but he did say that he was not in a position to make a statement on the Ohio platform.

AVANCEMENT OF LETTERS

The avalanche was brought upon him by the publication of the statement of his wife, Mrs. Roosevelt, in the New York Herald Tribune, July 16. The statement was a reflection of the ex-President's attitude, he shook his head saying that he was not prepared to discuss the Ohio platform.

Murderer of Colonel Laurie Buntin Is Still at Large

AN FRANCISCO, July 16.—The wedding of Roy M. Pike and Miss Edith Simpson developed a new wit in society and he has become quite the lion of the hour. I refer to James K. Armsby, the shipper of dried fruits and canned goods, familiarly known as "Jim" Armsby.

Armsby was one of the ushers at the wedding and was selected to deliver the toast to the groom at the wedding supper. That affair was presided over by Larry Harris, who has been called "the quickest-witted man who speaks the English language," and he had a lot of fun at Armsby's expense. Everybody expected that the running fire of the introduction would fluster the merchant and get him so rattled he could not talk.

But the kidding merely stimulated Armsby, and his toast to the groom was pronounced by far the wittiest thing of the kind ever heard in San Francisco. It was decidedly Armsby's evening, even in competition with Harris, Vail Bakerrell, Ned Hamilton and other Family Club wits and talkers. And now that the Family Club style of wedding supper has become quite the rage in society, Armsby is sure to be a popular card at all such functions.

The Real Diamond-Back

For years the eastern gourmet has girded at his western brother because he had no diamond-back terrapin to grace his board. Of course the westerner had to admit that he hadn't the diamond-back. He said all he could for his own "terrapin," but the easterner merely snuffed and snuffed and said:

"Merely a mud turtle, sir, merely a mud turtle!" It took us a long time to prove that our canvas-back, early in the season, was just as good a bird as the Chesapeake canvas-back, and we never have been able to secure a place for our crawfish alongside the eastern lobster. The diamond-back's absence was another sore subject with us.

But the diamond-back is here. The gourmets tell us that he is just as fine a diamond-back as any that ever slid from a log in a Maryland swamp. He comes from Clear Lake—called "Clear" because it never is. The diamond-back has been domesticated there. He has multiplied tremendously, and has become a marketable product.

The way the fishermen share him is one of the queer things of the coast. It seems he is given to nocturnal brawlings on shore. So the fishermen go out with the dawn and catch Mr. Terrapin crossing the road that skirts the shore. Then he is shipped off to market and makes his way into the clubs and homes of fashion. So the next time the man from Baltimore tells you that California has no diamond-back terrapin, just use on him that shorter and uglier word.

A Fool Alarm of Fire

Again our papers have been filled with dispatches of how flames were threatening the destruction of a forest of giant sequoias. We have been told that unless there was a change in the wind the great trees were doomed. Every effort was being exhausted to save the wonderful growths from the devouring fire.

We get that sort of thing every year, and I begin to suspect that the forestry bureau inspires some of the dispatches. Of course fire does immense damage in the mountains. Some forests are practically destroyed—particularly pine forests.

But the sequoia is just the forest that fire does not destroy. The fact that the giant trees still stand is proof enough of this fact, for ever since the aborigines discovered fire, flames have run through those trees and they have survived. The fire never penetrates through their bark and burns out the rotten parts when not has started. But we may be certain that year on year the dispatches will be sure to tell how, unless there is a change in the wind, the giant sequoias are to go up in smoke. Then, perhaps, some more foresters will be appointed.

Still a Chance for a Connoisseur

In the days before the big fire San Francisco was a great browsing ground for collectors and connoisseurs. Many a great find was made here. The man who knew things would come along and pick up, say, an ancient Chinese silk rug for about $250 and sell it right away in New York or London for $5000. Paintings by men with a sudden vogue were to be had here, and porcelains and ivories of great value.

Since the fire it seems to have been taken for granted that most of our good stuff was destroyed, but just now there is a search on for Emil Carlsen's still-life pictures, of which there are a considerable number here. Attention was directed this way as follows:

G. Cidenasso, the artist, had a Carlsen still-life that he offered to Ned Hamilton for $200. Hamilton got Louis Sloss to buy it for the Family Club, where it hangs in the diningroom. Along came Frank Unger from New York and asked:

"Do you know what that picture is worth on Fifth avenue?"

"No; how much?"

"At least $5000."

Along came Homer Davenport, saw the painting and said:

"A Fifth avenue dealer offered me $3500 for my poorest Carlsen—a picture not worth half as much as that one."

Recently a chap showed up with an offer of $5000 for the picture that cost $200, and he is snooping around trying to pick up any loose Carlens that may be found. If you have one, hang on to it.

It seems that Carlsen has made a great fame and a fair fortune in painting and selling marines and landscapes. He has sworn he never will paint another still-life as long as he lives. As he is regarded as one of three truly great still-life painters who ever lived; his still-life work is in furious demand. And yet he nearly starved when he worked in San Francisco and had to sell his paintings for anything he could get.

Those Notable Plans

The plans for your new City Hall have attracted a lot of attention in this city since they were put on exhibition. I find that the local artists—those of the real ability and the higher class—are strong in their praise of the manner in which the competition was set on foot and conducted, and they are generous in declaring that the best plans were selected, even when they had their own plans in competition.

I find, however, that they are also agreed that you are not going to build that splendid structure within the limit of expense you have fixed—$40 a cubic foot, isn't it? The architects tell me that Oakland must get ready to dig up more money before that City Hall will be completed.

The Softest Snap of All

Who is to be our next Lieutenant Governor? There is a job that has been permitted to go a-begging. It is worth $4000 a year for four years—$16,000 of salary—for doing what? For presiding over the Senate two sessions—five months' work in all. Incidentally, there is a chance for the Governorship and the title "Governor" for all his days.

Now, who are the men seeking this easy honor and easier money? I warrant if you ask the first ten business men you meet to name over the candidates you will not find one out of the ten who can call them off. They are as fine a lot of semi-unknowns as ever sought office in the State.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt League put forward A. J. Wallace of Los Angeles—a rich reformer; but he made so poor an impression on the stump that he was called in. Then Walter Parker trotted out Bert Farmer of Los Angeles—an awkward hulk of a fellow, entirely unheard of in the State at large. Some of the Curry men sprung Dick Ferris of Los Angeles—an actor, who came to San Francisco this week, all sparkling with diamonds. Frank V. Keesling of this city has asked himself to run. He is an attorney, unknown outside San Francisco, and not much known here.

Any Republican with a popularity that extends beyond the limits of his own village or township can get on the ballot by petition after the primaries and defeat any of the lot. There never was a finer opening for a good campaigner.

Like Some "Grisly Winter's Tale"

The murder of Colonel Laurie Buntin of the Bohemian Club seems weirdly out of place in a modern city and a scientific age. It belongs back in the Middle Ages, and makes one shudder to think that such things can be.

Here was one of the best-known men in San Francisco, a giant in stature and a brilliant wit. He is crossing Market street at Sutter in the early night hours. A fiend in a big red machine runs him down, crushes out his life, and is off and away, free as the air.

No one knows who the murderer was. There is no clue or hint to none. The murderer may be shaking hands daily with Buntin's friends. He may hold high place in club life and society. He may be the "Mr. Hyde" of some graceful "Dr. Jekyll" of our everyday life. We have no Dupin, no Sherlock Holmes, no Vidocq or Javert to hunt him down and tap him on the shoulder. And the fate of the big-hearted colonel may happen to any man who ventures abroad at night when the maniac speed murderers whizz and whirl and rend their prey.

What a Fraud Is Municipal Ownership

For year on year the municipal ownership cranks have been telling us of the glory of the railroad they were going to build on Geary street. It was to be a model road—a show road for all the country. They were going to give Calhoun an object lesson. In fact, way back in the days of Vining they were going to give him an object lesson.

The burden of their song was that San Francisco was to have an underground conduit system. The unsightly trolley poles and wires were to come rattling down. We were to have a "smooth and noiseless system"—far better than any in New York or Washington or Budapest. All the argument in favor of municipal ownership centered on this underground conduit. The municipality was to demonstrate that this was the only proper system for urban street railway.

But now, of a sudden, we find that all this talk was bunco talk, pure and simple. We are not to have an underground conduit system at all. We are not to denounce the feasibility—or impracticability—of that system. We are just to have the same old trolley. The "unsightly poles and wires" are to go up on another street. All the dangers of the old system, so magnified by orators and pamphleteers, are to be introduced on Geary street.

In other words, we have been beautifully swindled by a lot of theorists who haven't even the courage of their alleged convictions. Municipal ownership is crooked as well as crazy.

Petitions Filed

The pins for the State, district, county and municipal primary campaigns may be said to have all been set at 12 noon of Saturday, the 16th inst., which was the last minute for filing of nominating petitions by candidates for office with the Secretary of State. The candidates are a new record and their number cannot be added to, although those who are so inclined may retire at any time prior to the printing of the ballot. Under the primary law the candidate pledges himself on filing his nominating petition not to withdraw from the contest "if nominated."

The lineup of some of the candidates is made apparent by their political associations, particularly in respect to Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. The executive committee of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, in secret session, named, among other candidates, Hiram Johnson for Governor, A. J. Wallace of Los Angeles for Lieutenant-Governor and John D. Works, also of the southern city, for United States Senator. For some time this trio trained together in their canvass of the State, but their relations soon became such that Works and Wallace traveled by the railway train while Johnson proceeded by auto car. It is now reported that Johnson has sent them both home to rest until he shall rejoin them in the south. Both Wallace and Works have the political reputation of never having made good and Johnson seems to have accepted them at that himself.

Dick Ferris, manager of the Los Angeles aviation meeting and otherwise active in lines of promotion in the south, appears to have cast his lines for second place with Charlie Curry.

As running mate to Phil Stanton, Los Angeles' candidate for Governor, Major Francis V. Keesling of San Francisco is associated. Edwin Meserve, the Los Angeles attorney and candidate for United States

Senator, is also of this company. Walter Bacon, formerly of Los Angeles and now of this city, is managing the San Francisco section of these contests. Bacon first became conspicuous in higher politics as one of the managers of the fight of U. S. Grant Jr. for United States Senator. One of the stories accepted in political circles is that this combination has the backing of a no less influential citizen than H. E. Huntington, the multi-millionaire and traction king of Los Angeles.

Bert L. Farmer of Los Angeles is accepted by the politicians as the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor who will be associated with Alden Anderson, Republican candidate for head of the ticket.

Merchant and His Matches

The recent announcement of the engagement of the wealthy and athletic Boston heiress, Miss Eleanor Sears, to Paul J. Paine, the Cleveland millionaire, known abroad as the "Great American Spender," because of his lavish expenditures of money, has recalled the original founder of the Sears fortune, the grandfather of the young lady who recently essayed to walk from Burlingame to Del Monte.

The original moneyed Sears was a man of orderly and economic habits and knew nothing of polo ponies and young ladies wearing trousers and riding astride. Each business day he walked from the aristocratic west-end residence section of the city to his downtown place of business. Each morning, en route, Sears left an order for household supplies at the then famous Nash grocery on School street. Included in this order one day was matches. The merchant, after leaving the order, continued on his way, and the usual routine of the day, including a luncheon in a basement restaurant of State street, the maximum cost of which refectation was limited to 15 cents, that expenditure only following a most riotous indulgence in an extra doughnuts with his coffee.

On returning home to dinner this day, Sears was informed by his wife that the matches he had ordered would not light. The next morning the wealthy business man entered Nash's grocery with the package of matches and repeated the complaint of his wife that they would not light. Nash, taking one of the matches, raised his knee and scraped the lucifer along the thigh of his trousers. Lo, the saltpeter snapped, the sulphur was ignited and the match was ablaze. Another and still another of the lighters was similarly treated and with equal success.

"They appear to light all right," remarked Grocer Nash.

"By ————," hotly responded old man Sears in his piping tones, "you don't expect my wife to come way down here every time she wants to light a match and scratch it on your trousers, do you?"

Collecting From Democrats

Even the rich Democrats of Hillsborough, San Mateo, Burlingame and other resorts of the exclusive wealthy are not immune from the importunings of the leaders of the Bourbon machine for financial aid for that peculiar piece of political mechanism. This invasion of the political privacy of the exclusive Bourbons was instigated by Colonel Bill Almon, formerly a loyal follower of Chris Buckley in this city and who proved such an apt pupil in that school of politics that he was soon made one of the famous coterie known as "Buck's Business Men."

A few years ago Colonel Almon was transplanted in San Mateo county, and in token of his political training soon became known as "the Mayor of Colma." At a recent conference of the "workers" of San Mateo the colonel called attention to the fact that some of the wealthy Bourbons, resident of the exclusive towns of that county, had neglected to contribute to the campaign funds of the Bourbon faithful. Among those accused of this grave dereliction were Thomas A. Driscoll, Elliott McAllister, George H. Howard, Joseph S. Tobin, Richard M. Tobin and Joseph O. Tobin.

At the suggestion of Mayor and Colonel Bill Almon a finance committee was appointed to wait on the young and neglectful Bourbons and remind them of their financial duties to the party of Jefferson and Jackson, and which, on three different occasions, has sidestepped also, becoming the party of William Jennings Bryan. The committee was instructed to do its duty, but as yet its report has not been made public.

Gave Orders to Himself

That gallant old tar, Captain Edward J. Dorn, U. S. N., retired, now governor of Guam, who has both friends and relatives here, recently issued an order to himself as supplemental to one issued to him by the Secretary of the Navy. The matter has become public and is being generally talked about in army and navy circles here as well as elsewhere. The governor ordered himself to accompany the Supply, station ship at Guam, to the naval station, Olongapo, P. I., for her annual docking, and while in the Philippines "to carry out such business for the island government as could not well be delegated to others, including negotiations for certain specimens of the flora and fauna of these islands desirable for introduction into Guam; consultation with the prison authorities relative to the status of prisoners from Guam, and exchange of island currency into American money." According to what army and navy officers in this city say, the Washington authorities in passing upon the accounts of expenditures incident to this trip, have held that Captain Dorn's order to himself can have no effect other than that authorized by the Secretary of the Navy, who authorized him to accompany the Supply to Olongapo. The jurisdiction of Captain Dorn is limited to the island of Guam, it is held, and any additional duties beyond that must be imposed by higher authority.

How the Boy Got Ice

The other night when the Press Club entertained the sporting writers of the Eastern papers who had been sent out to Reno, some new stories were told. One had to do with a scarcity of ice for cocktails and how a supply was obtained. On Sunday, the day before the fight, one of the regular trains was crowded. A party of fight fans in one of the chair cars of this train eastbound from this city was making its own cocktails, having got a supply of ice from the Pullman car superintendent. When that supply ran out the party could get no more from the Pullman people.

"I'll give $5 for a hunk of ice," remarked one dry and prosperous fellow.

"Mister, I'll get you some, sure," came a response from an unexpected source.

It was a boy, red-eyed, sleepy looking. He was told a five-dollar gold piece would be his if he got a big piece of ice. Off went the boy towards the head of the train. It was not long before he was back with a big chunk. He was given the promised reward and the crowd of men soon had their regulation cold drinks. Some hours later there was a demand for more ice. The boy was called for and promised $2.50 for another piece of ice. He went off again, and, after being gone what to the expectant crowd seemed an awful long time, returned empty handed.

"Why didn't you get some ice?" was the chorus hurled at him.

"The baggage man up front wouldn't give me any more because he said if he did there wouldn't be enough in the box to keep grandma," was the bluntly frank and regretful reply of the urchin, which put an end to any more demands for ice and cocktails.

Old Men Honored

General T. H. Goodman and J. L. Willcutt, two veteran railroad officials now on the retired pension roll of the Southern Pacific, had birthdays last week and were the recipients of many presents and congratulations from friends. General Goodman is now an octogenarian, while Mr. Willcutt has reached the age of eighty-one. The former is the oldest living man in the United States who has been a general passenger agent of a railroad. The only two men who ever approached him in length of service in that capacity were the late Mr. Daniels of the New York, Central and the late Mr. Charleston of the Chicago and Alton roads. Mr. Willcutt is one of the oldest street railway managers on this coast, he, in addition to his Southern Pacific duties, having had charge for many years of the horse and cable car lines in this city, which were owned by Huntington, Stanford et al., and which formed the basis for the present United Railways Company of this city. In his mastery of and memory for details, Mr. Willcutt has always been considered a phenomenal man.

Battle Over a Woman

Samuel G. Ruff's marriage to Hazel A. Callan, the divorced wife of R. Stanley Dollar, a member of the wealthy steamship family, a day or two after her divorce from her first husband became effective, calls to mind the bitter and sensational fist fight these two men had about a year ago. Both men are very handy with their fists and by the time the encounter was over they were a sorry-looking sight for damaged and discolored eyes and facial wounds. It appears Dollar had been looking for Ruff for several days. When he did meet him he insisted on a fight and was accommodated. At the end of their first battle, Dollar was not satisfied and wanted another setto arranged. Ruff, so the story runs, was perfectly willing for another fight. Friends, however, interfered and prevented a second meeting because of the needless notoriety it would bring to others in addition to themselves.

Mrs. Dunne Wants Damages

Mrs. Duxie Rosenbaum-Rodgers-Dunne is suing the New York World for damages in addition to a suit against a wealthy Eastern woman whom she claims alienated the affections of her third husband, Dunne. A representative of that paper has been busy in the city several weeks gathering data about Mrs. Dunne. He has also engaged Garret W. McEnerney as an attorney to take the testimony of a number of witnesses before a commission selected by the New York court. Mrs. Duxie's first husband, Rosenbaum, left her an estate valued at $500,000. She divorced her second husband, Rodgers, before he was able to spend much of her money. She married Dunne about three years ago. He deserted her a year later and she claims the Eastern woman had much to do with Dunne leaving her. Dunne came out to the coast and assumed charge of the Hotel Savoy on Van Ness avenue shortly after the fire. It was there that Mrs. Duxie met him. She put some of her money into the hotel on his account. She lost considerable in business through his desertion of her; how much, is not known. Dunne left no friends behind when he quit San Francisco. As between Dunne and Mrs. Duxie, there should be no sympathy for him.

Does Not Want Pay

Here is a man who does not want pay.

A. W. Foster has returned to Fred Stratton in his capacity as receiver for the Ocean Shore Railroad the $2000 check United States Circuit Judge Van Fleet ordered Stratton to send to him as compensation for his services as one of the three experts appointed by the court to appraise the property of the road and give an estimate of what it would cost to complete it. At the time the board of experts reported to the court, Foster said he did not want any pay for his services because he had never worked for salary in his life and did not want to begin at this late day. He also remarked that he did not feel called upon, in view of the condition of the company's finances, to charge anything for his services. Judge Van Fleet took a contrary view, saying that the services were valuable and ought to be paid for. He therefore had entered of record that Mr. Foster, as well as the other two experts, should be paid a reasonable fee. This he fixed at $2000 and ordered sent by Receiver Stratton a day or two ago. In returning the check, Mr. Foster simply stands by his first statement that he did not want pay for what he had done. It is presumed that this will end the episode. It is one out of the ordinary.

Petticoat Influence

Old sea dogs are grumbling because the Navy Department at Washington has granted permission to Midshipman James J. Kauffman to marry Miss Elsa Draper of this city. Kauffman recently failed to pass an examination in his studies for promotion. The objection to his matrimonial plans was that the salary of a midshipman is not sufficient to warrant his marrying. Similar objections have been made by the authorities in the case of several other midshipmen during the past year. The Kauffman influence was strong enough to overrule objections in his case and the old dogs of the navy are saying that it was female influence which won the day. According to these unromantic officers, there probably is no branch of the Government service where petticoat influence is so strong as in the navy. Ask any former Secretary of the Navy about it, they say, and he will tell you how the navy women in a thousand different ways, some times unconsciously and occasionally deliberately, annoy the Navy Department. He will tell you how they scheme to obtain desirable posts of duty for their husbands or sons, and how they annoy the department with requests for a change of orders when their husbands are transferred from an easy job in Washington to sea duty on the Asiatic station or some other far-away tropical post. The recent row at the Boston navy yard, which culminated in the court-martial of two officers, illustrates, they also insist, the prominent part women often play in navy circles. These grumblers assert there should be more unmarried officers in the navy than is the case today, but I notice these objectors are all married themselves. One of these officers says John Hay told him once that the ideal diplomatic service was one composed of unmarried men. He says he told Hay that such would also be an ideal condition for the navy.

The Palace Detective

Captain William Glennon, house detective of the Palace and Fairmont hotels for many years, who died last week, was in the navy at one time, a sailor under

"Fighting Bob" Evans when the latter was a lieutenant-commander. Evans always had a kind spot in his heart for "Billy" Glennon and did not want him to resign from the service. But Glennon thought his chances were better ashore. So he joined the police force of his city and at one time was sergeant in charge of the Chinatown squad. It was while acting in that capacity that he ran foul of Chief of Police Patrick Crowley and his advisers and was relieved from duty. When Crowley would not give specific reasons for relieving him, Glennon resigned from the force. Robert and William Pinkerton, the detectives, were Glennon's friends and came to his relief. William Pinkerton came to the coast and asked Glennon why he was relieved from the Chinatown squad.

"I don't know," was the reply. "Chief Crowley never would tell me."

Pinkerton asked Crowley if he had anything to say against the honesty of Glennon and was told he had not. It was then that the Pinkertons used their influence and got him made house detective of the Palace some years before the fire. In addition, he had charge of all the guests who desired to be escorted through Chinatown. Together both positions yielded Glennon a splendid income up until the time of the fire. This man was certainly entitled to praise for sincerity, efficiency and honesty in all that he did.

Make Money On Scrap

A steamship official calls my attention to some queer shipments German steamers, which ply between Hamburg and South and Central American ports and on up to this city and Seattle, take now and then on the homeward journey from San Francisco and Seattle. Not long ago one of these steamers had as part of its cargo from Seattle 125,000 bales of scrap tin and about 6,000 similar bales from this port. This American mill and factory waste is utilized in Germany in a very profitable way. The Germans take this refuse and in due time convert it into tin soldiers, little wagons and whatnot for the American as well as their own Christmas trade. The steamship official says the profit in handling this kind of American waste is fully 100 per cent, in spite of the rates of freight and the long distances involved in the handling of it. In the same way, many bales of disused clothing, rags and old stockings are taken by the German vessels from this coast. The Germans have a improved process of remanufacturing all of this stuff into cloth for their own and other markets.

Bet On Johnson

It will be many a day before all the stories about Reno and the big fight are told. One popular young official of a certain corporation did not go to bed at Reno the night before the fight, although offered through a friend a small room to sleep in at one of the hotels.

"I'm going to remain up so I'll be sure to see this thing out," was his reply. "I don't want the same experience I had at the inauguration of President Taft."

He then told of how he went clear on to the national capital to see Taft inaugurated and then missed the show. All the Washington hotels were crowded at the time. Late on the night of March 2d he was given a small room in one of the hotels close to the roof. It was the only room left. They forgot to call him the next morning. He slept on until the morning of March 5th and for a moment had his sanity suspected when he appeared at the hotel office and asked what time the inauguration procession started.

At propos of betting on the fight, Adolph Ottinger, the wealthy ticket broker, won $11,000 on Johnson. Several of his friends also made large winnings on the d rkey. The same coterie went to Carson, Nev., at the time of the Corbett and Fitzsimmons fight and won a lot of money on the Cornishman. They are telling how they bet on Fitzsimmons because of form and record. They bet on Johnson partly because of form and because of the large odds offered.

Women Smoke Cigarettes

"Here is some cigarette smoking by women in society here, but not near as much as outsiders are made to believe by the weekly and society papers," remarked Mrs. ———, whose social position is assured, the other night in talking about Miss Eleanor Sear's recent frank public statement to the effect that she saw no harm in women smoking if they want to.

She then called attention to the press reports of the wedding presents received by socially prominent people lately, including Miss Mildred Carter and Viscount Acheson, which, among other things, were said to consist of cigarette cases, cigarette holders, ash tray and receptacles for pipes and cigars.

"I don't know of any young woman in society out here who would voluntarily admit that she received cigarettes and cigarette cases among her wedding presents, but some few have had that experience," continued Mrs. ———. "Others, both young and old in society, have either bought them for themselves or have accepted them as presents at any old time. The smoking in San Francisco society is more by way of imitation of the foreigner and Washington, and Newport set than for any real liking for it. But, of course, the habit grows. It will become more prevalent here as time goes on, the same as has been the case in the East. Personally, I do not like the habit and no daughter of mine would smoke if I could prevent it. Some foreigners have told me that we out here are too provincial to have yet got the smoking fad in goodly proportion among our women. Well, that kind of provincialism is to my liking. In my day at least most young American women in society will still rightly believe that to smoke is to lose a certain womanly charm."

Dealing With Japanese

R. P. Schwerin's departure for the Orient last Tuesday is likely to lead to some interesting developments. Schwerin is general manager of the Pacific Mail. The latter and the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, the Japanese steamer line, have a working agreement at this port in connection with the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe. For over a year there has been friction between Schwerin and the managers of the Japanese line on the alleged ground that the latter is not in all fairness living up to its part of the agreement. As the gossip runs, Schwerin has been given ample authority by his New York superiors to do some plain talking while in Tokyo to President S. Asano, the real power in the Japanese company. There is a provision in the agreement, which was inserted on behalf of the Pacific Mail by the late C. P. Huntington, that either party can cancel it by giving ninety days' notice. It is asserted Schwerin may give the ninety days' notice if his conference with Mr. Asano is not satisfactory. In that event, it remains to be seen if the Japanese line can get a traffic arrangement with the Western Pacific. If it cannot arrange through bills of lading and passenger agreements with an American overland road, its position at this port will be a desperate one. Last year, in spite of its government subsidy, the Japanese line had a deficit of $800,000 as compared with $200,000 for the Pacific Mail without any subsidy. Neither company would seem to be in a position for a war in rates. The Japanese stockholders in the Japanese company are at present dissatisfied with Asano because he has had to cut off their dividends. This dissatisfaction may help Schwerin in his mission.

Miss Appetite

Miss Appetite—we will call her that for short, because it completely submerges her true name, while at the same time emphasizing her remarkable capacity for eating—has dropped into town from where no one seems to know. She is living at a fashionable apartment house and during the past four or five weeks has been much in evidence at all the swell restaurants as well as at the woman grills at the three largest hotels. Her deportment, so far as the general public knows, is faultless. A good dresser, with attractive figure and charm of manner, it is not surprising she has made some ardent friends with the other sex. This will be still less surprising when it is known that she is a bit ready and unconventional in accepting introductions. She is not dark enough to be an Italian and not fair enough to be classed as a descendant of the Scandinavian countries. But to continue about her attractions: She talks clever English and French, sings and plays with much artistic ability and can tell a risque tale. But how she does like to eat! Last Monday three clubmen, warm friends, noted for their quiet manners and expensive tastes, were talking about what they had done the day before. One had breakfasted at noon with a young lady whose name he mentioned.

"The deuce you say," remarked another of the trio. "I dropped into Teichau's with her at 4 for a salad and oysters."

"What the ———! I had dinner with her at 8 o'clock at Tail's," replied the third friend, while the two others looked at him in astonishment. "Oh, wait until you hear the rest of my tale before getting surprised. We both ate heartily. Our meeting was accidental and I was in no hurry to break the engagement. On coming out of the restaurant, what was my surprise when she pointed to a finely dressed and genteel old man and said as she bid me good-bye: 'Thanks awfully for the dinner, but I know you'll excuse me when I tell you I have promised to supper tonight with that elderly gentleman.' And off she went with him in the direction of the St. Francis grill."

It was Miss Appetite they had all dined with the day before. She has got them guessing more than ever now.

Sullivan in Evidence

John L. Sullivan, who has been much in evidence hereabouts during the past few weeks, was telling the other day in the lobby of the Palace how he once interceded successfully with President Roosevelt to save a nephew of his from dishonorable discharge from the navy. According to John L., the boy after being an enlisted man in the navy for a year or more did something wrong and was going to be punished. So he called on Roosevelt and told all about his relationship to the boy, what nice people he had and how all the family and relatives would be disgraced if he was dishonorably discharged.

"Roosevelt got excited for a moment," continued Sullivan, "and demanded to know why my nephew enlisted in the navy and then acted the way he did. I clinched things by telling the President that if the boy had not enlisted in the navy he might have turned out very bad, taking up music, painting or something like that."

THE KNAVE.

A Square Deal Candidate.

"A square deal for everybody." That is what Alden Anderson promises. What more does any good citizen want? What else can an honest and truthful man promise?

A square deal is the essence of good government. It is the basis of all business and political morality. It means that everyone will get just what he is entitled to—no more, no less.

Coming from a man of Alden Anderson's character and record in business and politics it means a great deal. Mr. Anderson was never known to violate a public or private trust. In every office and every pursuit he has shown marked capacity and a conspicuous fidelity to the principles of morality and justice. No man can point to a flaw in his record or a blemish on his character. His reputation is unassailable.

No one has ever denied that he served the public interest faithfully and honestly while holding the several offices he has been called upon to fill—Assemblyman, Speaker of the Assembly, Lieutenant Governor and Superintendent of Banks. No one has ventured to lay official dereliction at his door or impeach his integrity and veracity in any relation of life.

Mr. Anderson has been uniformly successful in his business undertakings, and his success is largely attributable to his fidelity to the square deal principle. The members of the California Fruit-growers' Association, whose business he successfully managed for years, bear warm and unanimous testimony to this.

In character, intellect and executive ability Mr. Anderson is admirably qualified for the office of Governor. His fitness is not questioned by anybody, but his right to aspire to the Governorship is denied because his candidacy is not approved by a committee appointed by Chester Rowell of Fresno. Rowell has put up Hiram Johnson, and lays down the proposition that any man who dares to compete with him for the Republican nomination for Governor thereby becomes a servant of the Southern Pacific Railroad. While in office Mr. Anderson was never accused of serving the Southern Pacific. Nothing he has ever done in the past justifies the assertion that he will serve it in future.

Alden Anderson is a square man. He has always been square and can be depended upon to remain square.

A Harvard athlete announces a desire to meet Jack Johnson in the ring. Higher education continues to demonstrate its value in fitting men to cope with all emergencies. Still it is dollars to doughnuts that the uneducated negro can best the Harvard man in the squared circle even if he be deficient in the matter of solving square root conundrums in mathematics.

The Centennial of Mexican Independence.

All Mexico is preparing to celebrate the centennial anniversary of Mexican independence, which will occur on the 16th of next September. Mexico dates her national independence from the uprising which the patriot priest led on the night of September 15, 1810, although that insurrection was promptly suppressed and Mexico did not actually gain her independence till 1821. The successful revolt against the Spanish crown was led by Augustine Iturbide, who had himself crowned Emperor and was shot after a brief struggle with the republican forces. Nevertheless Iturbide was the real liberator of Mexico.

While Hidalgo is revered as the father of Mexican independence, it is a fact that his insurrection was an utter failure. It was not Hidalgo's intention to separate Mexico from Spain or to establish a republican form of government in the land of the Aztecs. Hence it is absurd to apotheosize him as the father of Mexican liberty. It is equally absurd to date Mexican independence from his abortive revolt.

Father Hidalgo was devoted to the Spanish Bourbons. What he actually did was to lead a revolt against the Napoleonic dynasty which had driven out the legitimate heir to the throne of Spain and usurped the crown. Hidalgo endeavored to throw off the yoke of the French vice-regal government and re-establish the authority of the Spanish Bourbons. He was not a republican nor an advocate of national independence for Mexico. His following was composed almost exclusively of ignorant Indians who were speedily scattered and dispersed and brought under subjection. Hidalgo was captured and executed.

After the Hidalgo revolt was suppressed with such bloody cruelty, the authority of the French vice-regal government remained unquestioned till the restoration of the Bourbons in Spain. Then Mexico peacefully submitted to the rule of Ferdinand till Augustine Iturbide organized the movement for national independence in 1820, a movement that culminated in success on the night of September 15, 1821. Still Hidalgo holds a glorified place in the Mexican heart as a martyr to liberty and national aspiration, while the name of Iturbide is execrated as that of a traitor.

Had Dr. Crappon waited awhile he would have learned something to his advantage from the Charlton murder incident. He could then have gone to Italy, peacefully slain his wife and returned to America secure from punishment.

The steps taken by the Board of Supervisors to segregate the inmates of the County Infirmary suffering from tuberculosis, so that danger of spreading the infection can be avoided and the sufferers given proper treatment under conditions most favorable to their recovery are to be commended as both wise and humane. The improvements being made at the infirmary will cost some money, but it will be money well spent, and we do not believe there is a taxpayer in the county who will begrudge his share of the cost. By segregating and properly housing tubercular patients the general health of the community will be conserved. It will afford opportunities for treating and studying the malady that will greatly benefit mankind. Moreover, it is only a matter of justice and humanity to the afflicted and unfortunate. Sufferers from tuberculosis are entitled to a fair chance to recover, and the other inmates of the infirmary should not be unnecessarily exposed to infection. It gives THE TRIBUNE pleasure to note that Alameda county is taking the lead in so beneficent a policy as providing suitable quarters and scientific treatment for those of its public charges afflicted with tubercular ailments.

Great Hymns and Their Authors

"One Sweetly Solemn Thought"—By Phoebe Cary

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er,
I'm nearer my home to-day
Than I have ever been before.

Nearer my Father's house,
Where the many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the crystal sea;

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burdens down;
Nearer leaving the cross,
Nearer gaining the crown.

But the waves of that silent sea
Roll dark before my sight,
That brightly the other side,
Break on a shore of light.

O, if my mortal foot
Have almost gained the brink,
If it be I am nearer home
Even today than I think,

Father, perfect my trust;
Let my spirit feel in death
That her feet are firmly set
On the rock of a living faith.

—Phoebe Cary, 1852.

The statement that this hymn was written by Miss Cary at the age of seventeen still persists in many minds and places, but it is incorrect. Even Duffield's "English Hymns," published in 1885, after stating that Phoebe Cary was born in the Miami valley of Ohio in 1824, and quoting Miss Cary's own letter in which she gives the date of the hymn as 1852, cheerfully adds: "At the age of seventeen she wrote this hymn." The fact is, she was 28 years old at the time.

Phoebe and Alice Cary were sisters, and both poets. Alice was the elder by two years. They had a stepmother who had no sympathy with their esthetic instincts. She thought their efforts were best exerted in helping her with household duties. The girls were willing enough to bear their share in this, but they thought that at night they were entitled to at least a tallow candle for light by which to read and write and study. But even this they could not get. They had to put up with illumination from a burning rag floating in a shallow vessel filled with grease. This was more than they would stand. Seeing no prospect of a change for the better they bundled their things together and went to New York City in 1852, which was a perilous venture indeed under the circumstances. But they made good.

As poets they are accounted of equal merit. Alice at 18 felt that it was time she should write, which she did, or the press for ten years in poetry and prose without compensation. Both were ambitious and marvellously diligent workers. In the metropolis they wrote novels and poems, and by industry and frugality, coupled with demonstrated capacity, they acquired a competence, which was a great thing to do in literature in those days. Alice ranks high among the female poets of America. Their Sunday evening recitations were a prominent feature of New York literary life for fifteen years. Merely fashionable persons seldom attended more than once, but men like Horace Greeley, John G. Whittier and Elizabeth Cady Stanton were glad to be there often.

Phoebe was of stronger physique than Alice, and upon her devolved the duty of managing the house. She was brilliant, witty, kind and genial. Her hymn, the one we are writing about, was composed on a Sabbath morning in 1852 just after her return from church, while the moon was still upon her. It was not designed for public use, but after it got into print it became very popular, with the music to which it was set, despite the truthful technical criticism that it is unadapted in meter to musical treatment. Moody and Sankey are responsible for its great vogue in England through the meetings which they held there.

Alice Cary died February 12, 1871, in New York City, and Phoebe on July 31, same year, at Newport, R. I., where she had gone to the seashore in the hope of improving her health.

On an Arabian Oasis

Of the oasis of Telma, in central Arabia, a courageous traveler writes: "The chief impressions I gathered of this ancient oasis were the extreme cleanliness of the houses, the great size of their halls, the wonderful water supply, and, I might also add, the beauty of the women. The halls are of such a size that when occupied by twenty or thirty men they still look empty. The rooms are high and lofty, with roofs of palm or tamarisk rafters, often supported by rows of pillars. I measured one room, 40 feet by 30 feet, and 20 feet high. The chief sight in Telma is the great well pit, the El Haddar, rightly called the "heart" of Telma, a well famous all over Arabia. It is of such a size and so great is the flow of water that ninety camels can draw water at once. By a clever system of skin buckets and ropes passing over ninety pulley wheels this number of camels can work at the same time. Automatically the water is tipped out into stone troughs and is carried to the farthest corners of the oasis by irrigating canals. Day and night the water is being hauled up and the constant creaking of the water wheels resounds all over the oasis. Besides this well there are at least twenty smaller sources.

"This water, the natives say, comes from the volcanic country called Harra. It is without doubt a strong spring of pure artesian water, which they have chanced to tap, which would otherwise flow unused all the way to the Persian gulf. There is apparently a great deal of water flowing across Arabia, but secreted in the sandstone far below the surface and hidden under its burning sands. In the depression of Telma the water lies near the surface and is therefore more easy to get at. By means of the water thus made use of the inhabitants grow the following crops: Barley, wheat and a small quantity of millet; they cultivate the plum, fig, lemon, pomegranates and gigantic citrons."

Twenty Years Ago in Oakland

Alameda county is becoming ruddy with politics and, before another month is ended will be drenched with political inspiration. Alameda county is entitled to forty-five delegates in the state convention and these delegates must be elected directly by the primaries without the intervention of the county convention. The county committee will apportion the delegates among the wards of Oakland and the townships of the county outside, and will also select a delegate at large. Among the candidates for delegate at large are Harbor Commissioner Charles O. Alexander, ex-Mayor William R. Davis, ex-Governor George C. Perkins, Josiah P. Ames, J. T. Carothers, W. M. Kent and George E. De Golla.

The Oakland Nationalist Club will meet this evening in Grand Army Hall, Thirteenth street between Broadway and Franklin. When national speeches will be delivered by J. P. Gerlick and others. Nationalist airs will be rendered by a select chorus of local singers.

City Attorney Johnson was asked this morning as to the Adams suit to test the validity of the proceedings by which additional territory was annexed to the city and replied: "It is my intention, now, to have the matter pushed through as speedily as possible. The last term we agreed to draw up a stipulation by which the suits were to be determined by two issues. I have written to the attorneys on the other side and we expect to have the matter determined as soon as possible."

The Fifth Regiment band has been having considerable trouble because it is required to give a concert in the city hall plaza Friday night and attend an inspection on the same evening.

Councilman Camron says that the proposition to reclaim the West Oakland marsh and to dredge and otherwise improve Lake Merritt would require a bond issue of $350,000. The Board of Education estimates that there will be required an issue of bonds for the purchase of school sites in the second and seventh wards, $45,000; enlarging school grounds in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth wards, $55,000, and for the purpose of purchasing a high school site, $75,000, making a total for all these improvements of $525,000.

City Auditor Snow ascertained from the figures on his books that the receipts of the city during the past year from all sources of revenue amounted to $649,075.66.

The license inspector says that the records of his office show that there are 1050 canines in this city.

A deed was placed on record this afternoon whereby the city of Alameda secures possession of the electric light plant on the other side of the estuary, the consideration being $28,000.

The fight for the senatorial nomination in the Eighteenth district promises to be quite interesting. Alameda township names Columbus Bartlett; Murray township, Valentin Alviso, and Washington township, L. B. Osgood. What is the matter with Eden township?

It is very probable that the Neptune Gardens in Alameda will not open this summer. The place is owned by James G. Fair and is leased to J. G. Croll, who conducted a saloon and on Sunday, furnished free music to those who wished to dance in the pavilion, making his profit out of the liquor sold. The gardens did not prove a success and there was a prejudice against the dance hall by the people of Alameda. Croll is now conducting a saloon in San Francisco. Fair invested many thousands of dollars in fitting up Neptune gardens, which include several large buildings and an immense pavilion on the water's edge, but the investment was not a popular one.

Lillian Lamson (since known as Nance O'Neill) of this city, who some days ago announced through the columns of THE TRIBUNE that she would star in "Camille" by way of opening her dramatic career, and who intended to make a tour of the North-western states, afterward going to England, has changed her plans for the reason that her financial backers have convinced her that such a tour would not be financially successful. She will, accordingly, go to England for more study of her profession and while there have a play written for her by some American playwright.

Judge Austin has been censured by Coroner Evers for holding an inquest over the remains of a man which were found near Mt. Eden yesterday and causing the interment of the same without making an attempt to ascertain the identity of the deceased, and especially without notifying the coroner's office of the facts of the case. The deceased, upon disinterment, was identified as William Hahn, who was drowned by the capsizing of a boat off Hunter's point some time ago.

The horse, saddle and bridle which were stolen from E. C. Sessions were recovered last night at Pleasanton and the thief, a lad named William Reeves, was captured. Property and thief were brought back to this city today by Detective Shorey.

It is understood that the City Council, which is soon to sit as a city board of equalization, is of the impression that the local assessment is too low and ought to be increased by $50,000.

The First Fisherman

Beside a vast and primal sea
A solitary savage he.

Who gathered for his tribe's rude need
The daily dole of raw sea-weed.

He watched the great tides rise and fall,
And spoke the truth—or not at all.

Along the awful shores he ran
A simple pre-Pelagian;

A thing primeval, undefiled,
Straightforward as a little child—

Until one morn he made a grab
And caught a mesozoic crab!

Then—told the tribe at close of day
A bigger one had got away!

From him have sprung (I own a bias
To ways the cult of rod and fly has)
All fishermen—and Ananias!

—Punch.

STORIES ABOUT PEOPLE

Mark Tulley, state treasurer and candidate for re-election, was a travelling salesman for twenty-five years and has a fund of good stories of the road.

He tells that one time he was in a town in central Kansas where a protracted revival meeting was going on. One of the residents of the town was named Toby. He was a tall, gaunt man with long whiskers, and was very fond of whiskey, of which he frequently imbibed beyond his limit. This man was attending one of the meetings, and the revivalist was busy scoring every form of vice and calling down drastic condemnation upon them.

"Woe to the drunkard! Woe to the drunkard! Woe to the drunkard!" he shouted in doleful tones.

Old Toby got on his feet and tugged at his whiskers and the fact that he stuttered only made his interruption more marked: "G-g-g-guess th-th-th-at's m-m-m-m-I-I-I-I'm p-p-p-present!"

The preacher went on: "Woe to the thiefs! Woe to the thiefs! Woe to the thiefs! Woe to the thiefs!" His voice was dolorous and sepulchral.

Again old Toby got to his feet. He motioned around the room, swinging and pointing with his arms and fingers.

"G-g-get up!" he commanded. "G-g-get up! He's calling on some of you folks! I've answered p-p-present. It's your turn now. S-s-stand up and be a-c-c-counted!"—Kansas City Journal.

Lakes of Mystery

Five thousand lakes of all sizes is the proud total claimed by the State of Michigan. Some of them are mysterious bodies having neither inlet nor outlet, nor, as far as can be discovered by sounding, bottom.

Many of the smaller lakes are slowly growing over and have wide margins of tough sod that will support the weight of a man, although merely resting on water or a thin mud of unknown depth.

These margins tremble to the tread and quiver for many feet around when stepped upon. There are instances where a lake has bottom entirely overgrown and for so long a period that the surface becomes solid and the existence of water underneath is unsuspected.

The Pere Marquette Railroad Company when building a branch between Grand Rapids and Lansing returned to the work one morning to find that several rods of railroad had disappeared during the night and a considerable lake had taken its place. Thousands of feet of timber and many car loads of earth were dumped in before bottom was found and the road had anything like a firm foundation. The pressure of the displaced water heaved the earth and cracked it for some distance around, tilting large forest trees, some of which fell.

Water came up through these crevices, bringing eyeless fish, both bass and bullheads, convincing certain former skeptics that when any organ or sense of locomotion falls into disuse it degenerates and finally is lost. Probably these fish were the descendants of others that had lived in darkness for ages.

OUTLINES PLANS FOR NEW ROAD

D. D. Mann Tells of Work Being Done On Canadian Northern.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 16.—D. D. Mann, vice-president of the Canadian Northern Railroad outlined the construction plans of that road in an interview here last night.

"Our working forces have started the first east section of sixty miles from the banks of the Fraser River opposite New Westminster," said Mr. Mann. "This first section is now claiming attention, but shortly work will be started on another section, extending westward to the east of the first one. No contract has yet been awarded for this second section, but it will not be long before one is let and work will be started on this year.

NO WORK IN EAST.

"At the eastern end of our line in British Columbia we have not yet started work. In one year's time we will be working on the eastern end of the line in this province. We have now a heavy working force building westward from Edmonton into Yellowstone Park. The three ranches British Columbia occupies on the eastern end of the road in this province will not be touched. It is essential construction at that point that we should have our rails laid westward from Edmonton.

"On the western end of the Canadian Northern in British Columbia construction may be undertaken at many points owing to the accessibility of our route. This will make for speedy work and we are confident we will have the entire line completed by the summer of 1912."

85c For $1.25 Silks For $1.00 Silks See the Display of These Silks In Our 13th Street Windows $1.25 Silks For 85c $1.00 Silks For 85c

THIS is one of the most remarkable offerings of this remarkable sale. The show list of imperious make blunders at times. The two that counted these silks to this sale greatly overestimated the market and were heavily overstocked. Our low cost cash offer came just in the nick of time to save them from ruin. And you may be sure they didn't resist or haggle. The silks are all as desirable as desirable can be. They are all recent importations. They are the very silks you are cheerfully paying regular prices for every day in the week. Among them are:

27-inch All-Silk Rajahs—27-inch All-Silk Slanting Pongees—27-inch All-Silk Satin Pongees—24-inch All-Silk Jacquard Pongees—and 24-inch Irrescent Silks. There is a complete color assortment in every line.

We could quickly sell every yard of these silks at full prices—$1.25 and $1.00. We might be tempted to do so, too, if we didn't want something sensational from our Silk Department for the third of the Department Managers Sale.

MRS. HARTJE WINS DIVORCE AFTER 5-YEAR FIGHT

Wife of Rich Paper Manufacturer Given Decree and Saves Reputation.

CARNEGIE AIDED IN HER DEFENSE

Millionaire Contributed $1,000-000 to Help Woman Disprove Charges.

PITTSBURGH, July 16.—Following five years of bitter legal strife, during the course of which the most exciting allegations ever chronicled in a court proceeding against a woman's good name were made by the husband and his friends, Mrs. Hartje today obtained an absolute decree of divorce from Augustus Hartje, multi-millionaire paper manufacturer, by Judge Tager in the common pleas court.

The Hartjes came from the town of the same name in the state of Ohio. Mrs. Hartje commenced suit against her husband for divorce, has been repaid with a settlement of $1,000,000, and a settlement of $1,000,000. The settlement was made by the Carnegie Foundation, which has been repaid with a settlement of $1,000,000.

WIFE AIDED BY CARNEGIE.

In substantiation of her allegations, Mrs. Hartje produced letters to court purporting to have been written by her husband to the two witnesses produced by her. These letters were produced by her. The letters were produced by her. The letters were produced by her.

EMPLOYED EXPERT FORGER.

Following upon the confession of Madison and How, the grand jury indicted Hartje and his wife on charges of forgery. The case was heard in the common pleas court. The case was heard in the common pleas court. The case was heard in the common pleas court.

LIVED IN SPLENDOR 12 YEARS.

The Hartjes were married in Pittsburgh in 1898. Mrs. Hartje was a daughter of John Smith, a wealthy banker, who was one of the most successful young men in Pittsburgh society circles.

MRS. EDDY PASSES 89TH MILESTONE FOUNDER OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

LEADER TO DIRECT PROSECUTION OF STETSON CASE

"Malicious Animal Magnetism" in Gotham Church Threatens Its Peace.

MORE EXPULSIONS ARE EXPECTED TO RESULT

Three Suicides Are Attributed to Alleged Malignant Mental Influences at Work.

BOSTON, July 16.—Mrs. Mary Eddy, founder of the Christian Science denomination, celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday anniversary quietly at her home today. It was announced simultaneously that Mrs. Eddy would personally take part in the movement to drive out of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of New York, the malicious organization which has been disturbing the peace of that institution.

The officers of the church made the emphatic declaration today that malicious animal magnetism had been used, and that the offenders must go. The officers of the church made the emphatic declaration today that malicious animal magnetism had been used, and that the offenders must go.

"ANIMAL MAGNETISM"

That was the inception of the term, "malicious animal magnetism." The magnetism implied in that term consists of a kind of hypnotism by one person, through the overpowering strength of his mind, which causes another to go slowly insane. These suicides have been committed since the Stetson trial, in which instances the self-murders left notes stating that they had been driven to self-destruction by malicious animal magnetism.

MRS. EDDY TAKES PART.

The malicious influence of the malicious animal magnetism on the First Church now requires heroic and final treatment, and while it was generally believed that Mrs. Eddy had given up personal direction of the affairs of the church, she will take part in this final struggle.

The spokesman for Mrs. Eddy said today that excommunication is going to be pronounced against some of those who cherish Mrs. Stetson with comfort, prayers and money. They are to be thrust beyond the pale of Christian Science.

After Mrs. Stetson was put out of the church, it was the expressed hope of those who had deplored her that she would become a leader in the church, and that in time she would humbly seek forgiveness for her actions, not only from Mrs. Eddy, but from those who had left it to her duty to check and curb her.

MORTGAGE IS SAID.

There was a $10,000 mortgage on the fine mansion which Mrs. Stetson owned in New York. It was thought that a difficulty in meeting that mortgage might give her additional reason to go mad. But the exact cause of the group of rich men who had been Mrs. Stetson's supporters before the strike in the church, was such that they guaranteed her income out of their own pockets. They repudiated the indebtedness on her house. Mrs. Stetson and her clique (apostles of error) (the regular call them) have flourished like a green bay tree. The fruit of the tree is declared by the troubled trustees of the church to be malicious animal magnetism, which they assert is poisoning the church to the very vitals.

GRANDSON VISITS MRS. EDDY.

Mrs. Eddy entertained her two grandsons, George Washington Glover, Jr., and Andrew J. Glover of Lead, S. D., at her home on Chestnut Hill, Boston, today. In another way did Mrs. Eddy change the routine of her life, and although she allowed the two young men, whom she had not seen for years, to come to her home, she told them that they were not to say anything about their visit which would cause her any embarrassment. Senator William B. Chandler of Concord, who has been her host during their visit in the East, did not come to have the boys tell what they had seen during their brief stay of an hour within the walls of Mrs. Eddy's home. He said that his successful efforts in 1907, by which a fund of $175,000 was created for the Glover family in Lead, S. D., might be undone should the young men be indiscreet.

FUND FOR SON.

"As a result of that action an agreement was made by which a fund of $175,000 was set apart, the income to be given to George W. Glover, the only offspring of one first in charge of the estate of Mrs. Eddy, it being controlled by her son, George W. Glover, that she was incompetent.

VISIT WITH GRANDMOTHER.

"When they came East they had no idea that their grandmother's birthday would be observed during their stay here. They have been my guests at my home in Concord during the last week. They came down from Boston and Mrs. Eddy, seeing they were so near, wished to see them. They started for her home about 1 o'clock and returned about 4 o'clock. They will now go back home."

Scions of Two Wealthy Families Forego Life of Pleasure for Work

I am going into business in New York to please my mother.—Edward H. R. Green.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Edward H. R. Green, son of Hedy Green, arrived in New York today to become a financial power in the East. He is five to admit that he would rather live back in Texas with an automobile and an alshay and an occasional flyer in politics on the Republican side when exchequer is lax. However, Mr. Green did not consult himself when he came out of the Southwest to be a power in Wall street. He is following the wish of his mother.

Mr. Green is at the Waldorf Hotel, where he will live until he can find a residence that suits him. Mr. Green is in reality a colonel, for he is colonel of the Texas National Guard. For weeks he has been closing up his business affairs in Dallas and is now ready to plunge in.

"I shall spend most of my time hereafter in New York," said Mr. Green. "My mother expressed the desire that I come to New York and engage in business, so I have done so to please her."

Mr. Green is Mrs. Hedy's only son. He is a bachelor, 40 years old and a big, jolly, rotund man. Seven years ago Mrs. Green bought the Texas Midland Railroad for her son and presented it to him. The road extends from Paris to Ennis and does a thriving business. Mr. Green, according to all reports, has cleaned up a big fortune in the Lone Star State.

W. P. PLANS TO RUN THROUGH TRAINS TWICE DAILY

Officials Promise the Best Modern Service from This City to the East.

PROMINENT EASTERNERS ATTEND ROAD'S OPENING

Sharp Rivalry Between the Big Lines for Passenger Trade Is Expected.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Western Pacific officials are out with a definite statement about the company's new overland passenger service, which is to be inaugurated August 22.

There are to be two daily overland passenger trains between this city and Denver, modern in every respect and with a fast schedule of time both over the Western Pacific and the other Gould line, the Denver & Rio Grande system. The hours of arrival and departure will be announced in a few days after passenger train Manager R. L. Lomax gets back from Chicago.

The two overland trains between San Francisco and Denver are to carry a Chicago through car to the Burlington road, and for the Rock Island, one for the Chicago & Alton via the Missouri Pacific and Kansas City, and a through St. Louis, Denver via Kansas City for the Missouri Pacific. Connection for all of these through sleepers will be made at Eastern Colorado gateway of Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver.

HAWLEY'S STRENGTH SHOWN.

It is natural that Gould's Missouri Pacific should have on these new trains a San Francisco and St. Louis through car. That Edward Hawley's Chicago & Alton line paid a through car by using the intervening part of the Missouri Pacific line on Pueblo and Kansas City shows the strength of Hawley in the Gould camp. He is a director in the Western Pacific and a related large owner of Denver & Rio Grande and Missouri Pacific stock along with Gould.

CLOSE DRAWN LINES.

The character of this new passenger train service also means the drawing of the line closer than ever by the San Francisco and Chicago and St. Louis passenger field, via Ogden and Salt Lake, between the Harriman system and its Alton and North Western allies on one hand and the combination of the Western Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Burlington and the Hawley road on the other.

Mother Finds Body Of Son Dead in Bed

Dependent as the result of a prolonged illness, Everett J. Spencer, a student living with his mother at 5625 Grove street, went home Friday night and found his son dead in bed.

POET MILLER SPEAKS.

After the luncheon hour, Mr. Miller, president of the Sequoia Club, made a brief speech and then asked the Miller to give the address.

Miller, responding, said he had first thought of his "Poems" in the company of Artur W. W. Miller. On the occasion of that first visit he saw a book, "The Path to the Grave," which he had been reading.

"I do not advocate that society and business should go hand in hand, but I would like to defend the society man from the attacks which have been made upon him. Society, in my mind, is an indication fully as important as finance."

Conferences Fail to Bring About Agreement but Company May Yield.

MEETING ON MONDAY TO DECIDE ON ACTION

Governor Advised of Situation and Fears That Troops May Be Needed.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—The strike crisis which has been confronting the great Pennsylvania system was temporarily averted this afternoon and from conditions that prevail now it is believed that the company will make definite overtures for a settlement when conferences are resumed Monday.

TO MAKE OVERTURES.

Late this afternoon President Lee of the trustees concluded an agreement with General Manager Meyers, agreeing to a further conference Monday. It is believed by the leaders of the strike that the company has decided to make overtures which will practically grant the demands made by the men.

READY TO LISTEN.

"We are ready to listen to anything the labor leaders have to say and we stand ready to weigh any concessions they may have to make," said Mr. Meyers. "We have made preparations for the strike. We have made preparations for the strike. We have made preparations for the strike."

Estate of Justice Is Held in Trust

CHICAGO, July 16.—The will of the late Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller of the United States supreme court directs that the property he left in trust until the death of his wife, Mrs. Fuller, be divided among his children and their heirs.

MAY RAISE TAXES ON BIG BUILDINGS
Owners of Twenty San Francisco Structures Cited to Appear.

POLITICS TOPSY TURVEY IN OHIO
Believed President Taft Will Throw His Influence Behind Longworth.

INTERESTS JOIN IN BIG COMBINE
Coast to Coast Vaudeville Circuit Organized at Cincinnati

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—Owners of many of the largest buildings in the city have been cited to appear before the board of supervisors sitting as a board of equalization Monday morning to show cause why their assessments should not be raised. The matter came up for discussion at the meeting of the equalization board yesterday when Supervisor Wilson asked why the big office buildings were not assessed in proportion to value. Supervisor Dodge stated that the assessed practice in taxing such buildings was upon a basis of earning power. A motion followed in New York. Dodge further explained that many of the large buildings had been built for the future and were not yet earning.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The topsy-turvy political conditions existing in Ohio just now have led to many rumors as to President Taft's choice for governor. Republican leaders concede that a mighty strong man must be picked to oppose present Governor Judson Harmon who has been unanimously chosen to lead the State Democratic ticket. As Ohio is President Taft's native State he is naturally interested in the political outlook there. The State Republican convention will be held in Columbus Ohio in the next week of the present month and it would require a prophet to tell now what will take place there.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—A meeting of vaudeville managers held in this city recently according to reports given out today by D. P. Keith of New York purchased half of all the vaudeville interests owned by J. C. Cox and Congressman Joseph L. Rhinock, including a half interest in the Anderson-Ziegler properties which had been bought by Newcomb Cox and Rhinock only a few days before. Cox in turn became a partner in Keith's Eastern vaudeville holdings. Then Martin Beck, head of the Orpheum or Middle Western vaudeville circuit was taken into the partnership. The amount of money involved in the deal is not stated. It is said however that the combination of interests creates a concern which has facilities for organizing to resist the Pe...

TENNANT'S FOUR-BAGGER ANNEXES GAME FOR SEALS

Both Nourse and Sutor Pitch Great
Ball, With the Shade in Favor of the Southpaw

By BERT LOWRY.

HARRY SUTOR had a loose shoe, Danny Long had a loose shoe—in fact, the whole San Francisco team had the loose shoe. It was a pity that the game was not over at once, for the San Francisco team had the loose shoe. It was a pity that the game was not over at once, for the San Francisco team had the loose shoe. It was a pity that the game was not over at once, for the San Francisco team had the loose shoe.

Seals Win in 1st Inning
After Sutor had gone out of the strike-out zone and Burns had been wined out at first by McCardle, Perry shot over the fence that he had a two-bagger. Burns was not there to catch it, and the inning ended without result for the Senators, just as did every other inning of the game.

Senators Fail to Hit Ball
When Sutor saw those three hits run up on the scoreboard he sort of flinched.

SIDELIGHTS OF THE GAME

San Francisco won.
O'Rand also gathers.
While the Angels do likewise.
Sutor had all the best of the argument.
Vernon and Angels do not make a boast.
At that Nourse pitched might good ball.
Tennant's homer came just at the right time.
Angels are that much nearer the top now.
Pretty clever handling of the pellet this.
Allowed the Beavers but three safe hits.
Oaks played errorless ball behind their pitcher.
It was the safety that scored the Oaks' two runs.
Moser pitched a great game up in Portland.
Two men had been ticketed to the initial sack.
It was a Stovall that gloomed the bingle off the Red.
Willie Hovan is still playing first base for the Oaks.
Howard made the lone tally of the southern game.
At that, it was as good as if it had been a million.
Catcher Thomas was the hero of the big act in man.
Grege pitched well, too, but he was shy on control.
All the other teams gave their pitchers faithful support.
Castleton allowed but one hit, while Angels got three.
Senators and Beavers were the only teams to make base.
McGreavey was entertained on his first-class journey down south.
The Seal's slusher sent nine men back to the bench in a single inning.
Perry was his easiest victim, fanning three times, while Nourse hit two.
Howard had seven of the eleven assists the Angels made throughout the game.
Madden and Mohler in the opening round and Mohler again in the third.

PORTLAND, July 16—Grege was wild to-day and that was the whole story of Oakland's victory. The first three innings his control deserted him, and he threw a ball into the visitors' hands in the first inning. He opened the second inning with passes for Carroll and Cutshaw. Waves sacrificed and Cutshaw cut one right over the plate. The young catcher rode it to left field for a safe hit and brought home the Countess' two runs.

Portland had only one chance and one tally was all it got. Martinez walked in the seventh to second on a passed out, to third on Grege's error and scored on Hodding's single. A double play followed that took the Beavers' remaining chance. The score:

LOS ANGELES, July 16—The Angels blanked the Oaks, 1 to 0, in a brilliant, errorless game today that was a fight all the way between two left-handed pitchers, Castleton and Pitt.

Castleton's performance for the Angels was a remarkable one. Allowing but one scant single and two men to reach first base, he kept the batsmen off guard. The two teams were evenly matched, but the Angels' pitching was the key to their victory.

Oakland's Marvelous Expansion and Costly Improvements During Past Four Years

OAKLAND'S FOUR-YEAR GROWTH

The Records Show New Buildings in Old City Boundaries Cost $30,000,000.

During the last four fiscal years the records of the Board of Public Works show that nearly $30,000,000 has been spent in building improvements in Oakland, as follows:

Year	Amount
1906-07	$ 9,821,331.20

NORTH BERKELEY TERRACE TRACT

Many Sales Made During First Week in July and Substantial Blocks Planned.

EXPANDING NEW RETAIL DISTRICT

Contract to Erect H. C. Capwell Co.'s New Emporium Assures Its Future

The letting of the contract to Percy J. Walker on Thursday by H. C. Capwell Company to erect for the latter the magnificent four-story Class A building on the property on the east side of Clay street, extending the full length of the block from Fourteenth to Twentieth street, at a cost of $350,000, removes all doubt about the future of the new retail dry goods district which was established over a year ago when the Hart & Penney block was built on the opposite side of the street. When the latter firm decided to build and move from the premises which it had occupied for over twenty years on the southwest corner of Broadway and Twentieth street, doubling the block, it was a bold move. The firm was then fully vindicated for their trade not only followed it but increased immensely in the new building where it has been able to do business under vastly more favorable conditions to itself and to its patrons. The rapid manner in which the block south of that occupied by Hart & Penney on Clay street has been transformed from an inferior residential quarter into an active business section actually wholly covered with modern business structures three, four and five stories in height, has strengthened the opinion of those who had faith in its ultimate development and in the future expansion westward of Oakland's central retail district.

Planned for the Past Three Years

For three years or more H. C. Capwell and A. S. Layson have been working incessantly on the plans for the great project which is now about to be carried out. The plan of the new building was finished some months ago by Architect C. W. Dickey, but has been on the list which is to constitute the site necessitated delay in the awarding of any contract until the present time. These are now expiring. The tenants have been moved to vacate and on January 2 the wrecking of the Hotel Tontine and other buildings now occupying the property will begin. The new building is to be finished in time for the H. C. Capwell Company to hold a grand opening day on November 11. The new building will have four frontages, one on each side of the quadrangle it will cover. These frontages will be on Clay, Fourteenth and Twentieth streets and on the street to be opened from Fourteenth to Twentieth street in the rear of the new City Hall which will be erected simultaneously.

Effect on First Methodist Church Lot

In all probability the award of the contract for the new H. C. Capwell Company building will have the effect of hastening a sale of the First Methodist Church property which has already outlived its usefulness for church purposes, as it is a ready hemmed in by business on all sides. It has moreover become too valuable as well as too inconvenient for church uses. The changes that have taken place in Oakland
